SATURDAY MORNING, MAR. 2, 1907 OUR GREATEST, GRANDEST INDUSTRY

We have heretofore made reference to the prodigious products of the country. In his annual report! Secretary Wilson gives the value of the farm products of the United, States as $6,800,000,000, a new high

The farm not only remains the foundation of the country's prosperity; its obscure magnates are the unknown captains of the country's greatest industry. They stay in the lead and are making extraordinary gains. The sum total of the output of all classes of manufacturing es tablishments compiled by the census authorities in 1900 was less than double the value this year of the pro ducts of the farmer alone. In 1906 the farmer shows an increase of nearly $500,000,000, or 8 per cent over 1905, and of more than $2,000,-000,000, or 31 per cent, over 1900. Prices have not been exceptionally high, while crops have been enor-
