"Two days without food or water," announced the Commando to an admiring audience; "think of it."

"Pretty bad," agreed a middleaged man; "but how would you like to have fought in the trenches in Flanders? Sometimes we were up to the waist in icy water and mud for a week or more." "Call yourself soldiers?" snorted a very old man who had hobbled "Pah! When I was in the Zulu war, a spear knocked me down and pinned me to the ground. I lay there for over a week without food or drink."

"By Jove!" exclaimed the Commando, "Painful, wasn't it?" "Not very," answered the old man; "only when I laughed."

LLECTRONICS-tomorrow's giant in the civilian world-is today's field for research in the U.S. Army Signal Corps. Throughout the land, and in strategic bases abroad, Signal Corps men are developing the knowns and probing the unknowns of radio, radar, Loran, Shoran, and other vital developments which make a closer knit Army -geared up for swift and effective defense.

It takes highly specialized men to operate the "Nerve Center of the Army." Men so eager to attain technical perfection that they'll shelve every conflicting interest to "get the message through." This training and this attitude pay off-for the American people as a whole, and for the fine men who choose this career.
