Nu-Gold Lube Oil is New!! To Produce the utmost power and the long life expected of modern engines, both gasoline and diesel, the lubricating oil should function as follows:-1. Keep Piston Rings Free:—Piston rings cannot maintain proper piston seal if the oil used forms carbon or permits carbon to form in the ring grooves. Carbon formations usually mean stuck rings, allowing blow by and lost compression. In addition to forming a minimum of carbon itself, the oil must remove the carbon depositied by the combustion of the fuel. 2... Penetrate:—In addition to the rings the oil must penetrate, and quickly, to all bearings and other vital joints to prevent any metal to metal contact throughout the engine. 3. Circulate freely:—The high speeds of today's engines necessitate faster circulation of the oil for after all the oil is the conductor which takes away the heat from the bear-Kerr jars, pints and quarts, a lot of ings and relays it to the outside. 4. Cling to Metal Surfaces:—Wear on the vital points is excessive when an engine is started cold. Much of this is no doubt due to the oil draining off while the engine is idle.

To safeguard the engine on cold starts the oil must have the ability to cling to metal surfaces over a long period. 5. Minimum Sludge Forming Tendencies:—Much repair work is necessitated by oil sludging and causing stoppage in oil lines or screens. Bearings burn out from lack of oil, therefore the oil must be free from sludging tendencies. 6. Be Non-Corrosive: — Bearing manufacturers warn against oils of corrosive nature, due to the variety of the newer bearing metals. Bearings are smaller and thinner; corrosion works havoc quickly. Nu-Gold Lube Oil Is New. It is the answer to the greater demands of the modern engine, and it flows freely at temperatures below zero.

Best of all, Nu-Gold costs no more than ordinary oils. The savings in operating cost during the life of the engine should be more than eonugh to pay the entire oil bill.
