The Junior Class, in whose hands rests the guidance of the Junior-Senior Prom, have already begun their tedious task of planning the affair. The president of the third yearman, Albert Foley, recently named his prom committee which will consist of Hampton Carmine, Anne Turner, Frances Mead, Phoebe Orms, and Betty Lewis; they determined that fifty cents was a fair price to tax their fellow classmates. Collections have even at this time be gun. The date set by the faculty for the outcome was still in our favor, the annual occasion is June the 5th. but many contentions have come from the Juniors to the effect that May is the better month. Their reasons are based on the fact that many students will be in Baltimore attending the All-State Track Meet and that the fifth would be too near to the dat of the Alumni Dance and other graduation exercises. As a '37 man, I agree with my contemporaries, but if I were a Senior, my ideas would probably be different-it's all in the viewpoint
