Ruth Draper In Character Sketches

Ruth Draper, the international favorite will play a week's engagement at the National Theatre, beginning Monday, May 3, and will present a different program of her world famous 'Character Sketches' at each of the eight performances.

Who is Ruth Draper? What is she? What does she do? Those are natural questions to ask if one never has seen this magnificent actress.

Ruth Draper! She is a slim, dark haired woman who re-created an old art of the theatre into a new one. This new art is composed of the arts of the disease, the monologist, the pantomimist, the playwright and the actress. She brought into being "The One Woman Show."

What is Ruth Draper? She is a magician. Not in the accepted sense, but because of the magic she brings to her performances. Alone on a stage, clothed in simple draperies, she becomes the various characters in the fifty sketches she has written for herself, and also peoples the stage with the characters of her imagination as clearly as if she had a large supporting cast. Audiences almost believe that they can hear the words of dialogue which are unspoken by this invisible, non-existent cast. Impossible? Not at all. Ruth Draper accomplishes this magic by the sheer power of her great talent.

What does Ruth Draper do? She plays to capacity houses the world over, for there is no art as cosmopolitan as hers. From South Africa to Europe to the United States audiences flock to her entertainments. Last summer in London, during her eighth annual engagement there, her season was prolonged from five to seven weeks at the Haymarket Theatre. This year she cancelled her contract for that theatre to make her present transcontinental tour which she interrupted in California to go to Hawaii to give two request performances at the University. The University Auditorium was sold out in two days so Miss Draper's performances were given in a larger auditorium in Honolulu. Following her week's engagement at the Geary Theatre in San Francisco, a Sunday matinee was added and played to capacity. She once played for twenty-eight consecutive weeks at the Comedy Theatre in New York—a record never before or since achieved by any solo-performer.

It is impossible to reveal in words the magnificent performance Ruth Draper gives. Mail Orders now. Seat sale April 29. Prices, nights, 55c to $2.75; matinee Wednesday and Saturday 55c to $2.20.
