

38 STATES FURNISH OLD-AGE PENSIONS

635,000 Now Receiving Aid, Social Security Board Report Reveals

The Social Security Board said Monday 635,000 persons in thirty-two States and the District of Columbia were receiving old-age assistance from grants provided by the Federal Government to bolster State funds.

Officials estimated that this represented sixty-five per cent. of the needy aged in the country. The board announced Monday its approval of the New York State plan.

The action made the State eligible to receive from the Federal Government approximately one half of the cost of aid to its needy aged, which was estimated by the board at approximately $15,000,000 during the next year.

New York's plan calls for assistance to 60,407 needy aged individuals at a total cost of $1,264,260 a month. Monthly allowances throughout the State will average about $21 per person.

Plans have been submitted, but not yet approved, for Florida and Hawaii.

Counted among those whose plans have been approved is Texas, which will not receive any funds until July 1.

The Federal quarterly allotment now amounts to $16,788,854, and the total amount spent in the States approved—Federal funds plus State funds—during the three-month period is $32,122,678.

Under the plan now in operation, the Federal Government pays the State a sum equal to half of any amount up to $30 a month which the State pays to a needy person 65 or over who is not cared for by a public institution. In addition, it pays the State an amount equal to five per cent. of its assistance grant which may be used either for old-age assistance or administrative expenses.

The amount paid to individual recipients is determined by the State, but if it is more than $30 a month the State bears the excess up to a limit of Federal contributions being $15 a month.

The States whose compliance with conditions have been approved, along with the number in each receiving aid, and the amount they receive are:

- Alabama, 5,000, $8; Arkansas, 15,000, $10; California, 68,575, $28; Colorado, 25,000, $25; Connecticut, 8,000, $19.83; Delaware, 3,593, $10; District of Columbia, 1,500, $30; Idaho, 7,000, $25; Indiana, 36,000, $16; Iowa, 30,000, $14.50; Maine, 1,500, $25; Maryland, 7,800, $18; Massachusetts, 27,974, $25; Michigan, 27,500, $16.50; Minnesota, 22,000, $25; Mississippi, 15,000, $3.50; Missouri, 27,000, $9.50; Montana, 6,999, $22.25; Nebraska, 20,000, $18.33; New Hampshire, 2,900, $20; New Jersey, 16,700, $15.80; New Mexico, 5,295, $10; North Dakota, 5,830, $20; Ohio, 90,000, $15.10; Oklahoma, 34,399, $8; Oregon, 10,000, $25; Rhode Island, 1,991, $18; Utah, 5,550, $30; Vermont, 4,300, $11; Washington, 15,000, $20.58; Wisconsin, 30,000, $20; Wyoming, 2,017, $24.28.

ELOPEMENT LEADS TO DIVORCE COURT

The story of an elopement to Elkton in which two couples who were to be the witnesses, instead of the intended bride and bridegroom, were married is revealed in the suit of Mrs. Catherine Kimmins of Atlantic City, N. J., filed through counsel in Circuit Court at Elkton for an annulment of her marriage to William C. Kimmins, also of Atlantic City. The plaintiff alleges that both she and her husband are minors, although her age was given at the clerk's office as 19 and his age as 21.

The plaintiff alleges that she went to Elkton, with two other couples, to witness the marriage of one of the couples, and upon her arrival was "persuaded, threatened and coerced" into carrying through the marriage ceremony with the defendant; that the couple for whom the trip was taken failed to marry and that the two couples that were to act as witnesses were married.

Following the ceremony the plaintiff and defendants went their separate ways, it is alleged, and they have never lived together as man and wife.

The marriage license was issued to the parties on January 31. They were married the same day by the Rev. C. M. Cope.

SUSQUEHANNA AND NORTH EAST RIVER IMPROVEMENT

Letters to The Midland Journal from Hon. T. Alan Goldsborough, Congressman from First Md. District, under date of June 22, state:

"It gives me great pleasure to inform you that the necessary dredging between Havre de Grace and Port Deposit has been authorized and that the dredging will be done during the summer of 1936.

"I am very happy that our efforts in securing this dredging have been successful."

"I am very happy to be able to report that the District Engineer and the Division Engineer have recommended to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors of the War Department a survey of North East River, and that the Board of Engineers has ordered the survey to be made.

"Surveys are not ordered unless it is fairly certain that the survey will result in a favorable recommendation by the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors to the Congress that the dredging should be done; so, I think I can assure you that the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors will report at the beginning of the next Congress that the desired dredging at North East should be done, and that the Congress will authorize it so that it can be completed in the summer of 1937.

"It always takes at least two Congresses for a River and Harbor project. In one Congress the survey is provided for, and, if approved by the Board of Engineers, the authorization is made by the following Congress.

"I am very much pleased about this."

An Aim in Life

A WRITER once said, "An aim in life is the only fortune worth the finding; and it is not to be found in foreign lands, but in the heart itself." The trend of education lies more and more toward establishing "in the heart itself" higher aims and motives for living. It is to the advantage of society that wrongdoers are being taught repentance and reformation, and are in many cases being given extended opportunities to develop their talents and usefulness. Education that promotes temperance, honesty, gentleness, reciprocity, is an asset, for as higher, holier aims are firmly planted and unfolded within the heart of each world citizen, so will community, national, and international relations be measurably improved. Righteous aims are to be esteemed above money and jewels, for the fortunes they bring are indestructible and of inestimable worth.

Certain Bible characters had aims in life, holy and commendable. Who, after reading of Daniel's spiritual insight and ability to subdue lions, has not felt a greater desire to know Daniel's God, who "delivereth and rescueth"? Daniel did not claim to be unique. He explained his rescue on the basis of innocence before God and his harmlessness before Darius, his king. Previously, when called upon to interpret the dream of king Nebuchadnezzar, he said (Daniel 2:30), "This secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living." Who that has studied the life of Moses, his meekness, courage, spirituality, has not experienced a keener incentive to live according to God's plan? And surely those who read the words and works of the master Christian long to go and do likewise, even though they do not fully perceive the spiritual import of the message. To attain moral excellence is a worthy aim for anyone.

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy has given the world this viewpoint:

"One's aim, a point beyond faith, should be to find the footsteps of Truth, the way to health and holiness." And a few pages farther on she tells how this may be accomplished: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual, they must near the grander interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite,—in order that sin and mortality may be put off" (pp. 241, 265). . . . Jesus urged all to love God supremely and to regard their neighbor with loving-kindness. It is quite true that if we did this, there would be no temptation to break the Ten Commandments; that is, we should live purely and honestly, resisting with success temptations to kill, steal, bear false witness, covet, or commit adultery. We should honor the Father-Mother God, and keep every day holy unto Him.

Aspirations and motives to live rightly are natural and normal to children who have been correctly taught. Often a child is so cognizant of love and goodness as to be protected from harm. He is often so conscious of expressing loving-kindness that he is totally unaware of another's evil thoughts. Parents may early establish in their children an aim in life that incorporates fellowship, generosity, industry, thoughtfulness, and is expressed in daily occupation. . . .

More mature students, also, may guard and guide their thinking in accordance with Truth and Love. One who welcomes and appropriates even faint desires for better living, cherishes them secretly in his heart and strives openly to practice them, finds his life becoming productive, progressive. Consolation to Truth is a character builder, promoting the welfare of the individual and thus elevating world conditions. Evil thoughts and aims, like the house built on the sand, fall eventually, even if for a time they seem clamorous and insistent. The Bible gives us firm foundations for our individual building. . . . —The Christian Science Monitor.

NEWS FIELD REMAINS

COBB'S CHOICE

Irvin S. Cobb, humorist-novelist-dramatist-journalist, has branched into many fields since he started as a small-town newspaper editor when 20 years of age.

But news work was his first and greatest love, Cobb confides, hence he probably places more emphasis on this occupation than others. That explains why this unusual personality's weekly column of humorous comment on current events ranks "tops" with America's news-reading public.

Now under movie contract after his success in "Steamboat 'Round the Bend," with his late friend, Will Rogers, Cobb is broadening his experiences to bring you sidelights on an even wider field.

Cobb's new column appears regularly in The Midland Journal.
