

NINTH ANNUAL SAVE-A-LIFE INSPECTION CAMPAIGN

Warning to Maryland motorists that the ninth annual Save-A-Life Inspection Campaign of all motor vehicles registered in the State would be conducted from October 1 to October 31, was issued yesterday by Walter R. Rudy, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

The inspection is a prerequisite to the registration of motor vehicles for 1937 and owners will be unable to obtain new license plates unless their machines bear the official sticker certifying the inspection has been made, Mr. Rudy asserted.

With the cooperation of all automobile distributors' service stations, general repair garages and other automobile shops in communities throughout Maryland, about 1500 inspection stations will be appointed where motorists may have their machines examined free, the Commissioner said. Every automobile and truck in the State must be inspected by a mechanic or service station, meeting the approval of the Commissioner appointed for that purpose by him.

The salient points of examination will be brakes, lights, horns, steering mechanism, windshield wipers, mirrors, license tags, windshields and bumper guards. The inspection of bumper guards will be made to see that they do not obstruct the license plates.

A great number of motor vehicle owners are overlooking the fact that the law says nothing must obstruct any part of the tags to prevent their identity. These guards cover numbers and make it difficult at times to distinguish them. Other defective parts as mentioned above have caused many serious accidents, said Commissioner Rudy. Any automobile or truck found unsafe or with a mechanical defect must be placed in a safe condition before an official inspection sticker will be issued, he said.

Last year 336,431 automobiles were examined; of this number it was found 73,000 had unsafe brakes, 124,000 headlights were adjusted or replaced and 16,000 steering mechanism were placed in safe condition. The Commissioner suggests that motorists have their machines inspected early in the campaign and avoid as much as possible the congestion which usually occurs at the close of the period.

BURTON L. KEILHOLTZ

The sudden passing on of Burton L. Keilholtz, at his home in this town, on Sunday morning, was a great shock to this community. Confining to his bed since the Thursday afternoon previous by an attack of rheumatism, from which he was a frequent sufferer, he had been afflicted with intense pain, requiring frequent calls to his physician, was last at his bed-side about 1:00 o'clock Sunday morning to administer to him, and left him easier. About six o'clock Sunday morning Mrs. Keilholtz found him dead in bed, evidently having suffered an acute heart attack in his sleep.

Burton L. Keilholtz was aged about forty years. He was the son of E. Hughes and Lillie L. Keilholtz, of this town, where most of his life was spent. He had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church since he was fourteen years of age, was always an interested and active member of his church and for years past had been a member of the official board. He was held in universal respect by all who knew him. Was quiet and unassuming; ever ready to do a favor.

Burton learned the printing trade in the office of The Midland Journal, and was our linotype operator at the time of his death. He had been in our employ for years, and we always found him courteous, painstaking, willing and a skillful workman. For some years he was employed at Newark, Del., and Oxford, Pa. He leaves a host of warm friends to mourn his passing on. He never married and is survived by his parents and one brother, Clyde Keilholtz, of this town.

Funeral services were held at the late home on Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock, and interment made in Brookview cemetery.

prevents the backward motion of a ratchet-wheel. It applies a mechanical principle familiar to everyone . . . in windlasses, hoists, railway hand-brakes and window blinds.

A ratchet holds what you have gained while you make ready another forward effort . . . It works like property insurance. When the owner of a home or business has hard-earned possessions taken away by fire, windstorm, explosion, theft or accident, his insurance steps in to cover the financial loss . . . and he goes on earning and building without setback.
