MEASURING THE BABY.

That danced on the lattice sill!

His eyes were wide as blue-bells— His mouth like a flower unblown— Iwo little bare feet, like funny white mice, reeped out from his snowy gown; and we thought, with a thrill of rapture, That yet had a touch of pain, When June rolls around with her roses, We'll measure the boy again.

Through tears that fell like a bitter rain, We measured the boy to-day; And the little bare feet, that were dimpled And sweet as a budding rose, Lay side by side together, In the hush of a long repose! Up from the dainty pillow,

The fair little face lay smiling, Dropped from a rose, lay still Never to snatch at the sunshine That crept to the shrouded sill ! We measured the sleeping baby
