Fished Out

Ocean City—Ten persons, seven of whom were women, were rescued a half mile off shore by Coast Guardsmen after they had leaped into the water from a disabled fishing yacht. The craft went out of control when the steering gear broke, crashed into a rock jetty and had its hull stove in. Skipper Dr. Charles E. Law ordered every one overboard with life preservers when the yacht showed Centreville Opera House this week. signs of sinking. Three women were hurt by the waves.

Cambridge-Amateur fishermen were quick to take advantage of the possibilities of Emerson C. Harrington Bridge over the Choptank. With fish biting, anglers are out from sunup till dark and a crowd of 231 including outof-state fishermen turned out for moonlight fishing. Fishing from the eastern side has been banned by the State Roads Commission because of danger from the traffic. Curb Door Bell Ringers Salisbury—Aiming to curb the activities of all kinds of solicitors, including unscrupulous ones, the Chamber of Commerce plans to issue cards to worthy ones, recommending that citizens approached by solicitors ask to see their cards as an assurance of reliability.

Close Call Madison-Caught in a heavy windstorm in the Choptank River, Charles Mackall and his two boys narrowly escaped drowning when their boat upset. They clung to the bottom of the craft in rough water until their plight was observed and aid came.

To Build Fire Tower Cambridge-Adding another link to the forest-fire lookout system for the lower Shore, arrangements were completed by W. J. Quirk, assistant State Forester, for erection of a 120-foot fire tower near East New Market on the highest land in Dorchester county. The structure will be the twenty-ninth of its kind in the stae.
