

COMPARATIVE VIEW OF THE American Confederation, WITH THE Hartford Convention States.

Table comparing American Union and Hartford Convention States. Columns include State Name, Population, and other metrics. Includes an eagle emblem for the American Union and a crown emblem for the Hartford Convention.

REMARKS. It is a painful task to be obliged to expose the weakness of our own native State. But when deluded men advance sentiments of resistance and retaliation to the Union, and talk of their means and power to carry their threats into execution, it is a duty we are compelled to perform—to expose their weakness and want of means to carry their purposes into effect.

dignified his spunky little States with a suitable head, and decorated them with all the emblems of royalty, to show from whence they sprung. If we succeed in quieting the fears of the women & children, we shall have done all that is necessary—for most certainly there is no man or boy, of any kind of information or spirit, that can have any fears on the subject.

happen, that any part of the administration were to waver in their course, or be deterred from passing such laws as the exigencies of the times require, then we should say, resign your seats to other men, who have nerve and firmness to pilot the ship thro' the storm.

solemn obligations that bind the States take the least." We choose the res- together in Union. He talks of making a new Constitution as flippantly as if it were perfectly legal for two States to govern EIGHTEEN. Has he ever read the celebrated pamphlet, called "The Federalist," partly written by HAMILTON? Let him read the book, and see what is said respecting the imperious duty of the States, and their solemn obligations to the Union!

"Congress must be trusted with a power of procuring supplies for defraying the expences of the confederation of contracting debts and providing funds for discharging them; and this power must not be capable of being defeated by the opposition of any minority in the States."