From the American Whig. JIMMY CARROLL. TUNE-" Old Dan Tucker." There was a man in Baltimore, When the British landed on our shore, That every body thought would fight, But he declared it was not right. Get, out of the way, Jimmy Carroll, You are afraid of a musket barrel.

But now the Locofocos say He served the State another way; For he voted with the Loco crews, To disfranchise the Jersey blues. Get out of the way, &c.

And now for Governor of our State, They've brought him out, but he's too late; He'll get a Waterloo defeat, For Tommy Pratt was never beat. Get out of the way, &c.

But now the nags are in the pasture, And some say Jimmy is the faster; But he'll not run as fast next fall, As when he run to Hampton Hall. Get out of the way, &c.

Throughout the State the people's risin', For Pratt, and Clay, and Frelinghuysen; Poke is withering, Locos fighting, The nation's cheering and Coons are biting. Get out of the way, &c.

Montgomery Coons will take the right, For they are foremost in the fight; And at the polls, weather foul or fair, Them same old Coons will all be there. Get out of the way, Jimmy Carroll, You are afraid of a musket barrel.
