

had a slight cough when he took a cold, same as other people but he was certainly a strong healthy man at that time. And could and did heavy hard work, general farm work. I came up to this city maybe two or three years before the war broke out. And have lived here ever since. The next time I saw him to speak to, was after he had been discharged he said he had just been discharged and came to my house the first thing I was then living on Edouard St. I had lived with him about three months before his wife came up from the country. He had on a blue overcoat. He was sick when he came to my house. But I cannot say where he had come from. - He was then complaining of "miseria" in the small of his back. And had a desperate cough - which continued while he was at my house. I don't know that he ever had a doctor come to the house to treat him, but he used to go to my doctor. (Brooks dead) and get medicine. - I don't say whether
