shall have been made, who is hereby empowered and required to meet at such time and place as he shall appoint for the trial thereof, and the same, if condemned, shall, with all things thereunto belonging, be sold by the order and under the direction of the said justice, who after deducting all legal costs and charges, shall pay one moiety of the proceeds to the collector of the said county, for the use of the county, and the other moiety to the person who seized and prosecuted the same.

7. And be it enacted, That if any person or persons on board of any such canoe, scow, boat, flat, or other vessel aforesaid, shall refuse and not suffer to enter, or resist, before or after entering, any officer or officers, or otherwise resist them, or any of them, in the execution of their office, then every person so offending, shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars, to be recovered with costs, by action of debt by such officer in any of the county courts of the respective counties of this state, the one moiety to the use of such prosecutor, and the other moiety to the collector of the county where the offence was committed, for the use of such county; Provided always, that nothing in this act contained shall prevent the taking and transporting of oysters as heretofore from the waters of the Potomac and Pocomoke, where those rivers are common territory to the states of Maryland and Virginia, nor to prevent oysters taken from any part of the said rivers or creeks thereof, from being transported to any place whatsoever; And provided also, that nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to prevent any person, residing in Washington county, in the District of Columbia, from using the waters of Maryland as fully and freely as any citizen of Maryland is authorized by law to do.

8. And be it enacted, That this act shall commence and be in force from and after the first day of April next.

THE WHIG:

EASTON, MD.

TUESDAY MORNING, March 9, 1830.

For some months past we have had it in contemplation, and have now resolved to establish, during the next month, a CIRCULATING LIBRARY in this town. According to the arrangements which we have made, the Library will consist of from fifteen hundred to two thousand volumes. These will be composed of the most popular and standard works, in all the various departments of literature and science. And in addition to these, according to the arrangements made, all the new novels and other interesting European publications shall be forwarded to us immediately after their arrival in this country. Should our undertaking be successful, and from the encouragement which we have already received, we have sanguine expectations of its success, we shall probably add some of the most popular journals of the United States for the perusal of our patrons. The advantages resulting to the community from such an establishment must be manifest to all; and as the subscription will be only five dollars per annum, we earnestly solicit the patronage of the public, in order to sustain us in this important undertaking.

See how plain truth puts falsehood to shame.

In the Easton Gazette of the 27th of February, there is an article under the head of "the present and the past" comparing the present administration of the General Government with that of Mr. Adams. In this comparison the writer goes on to say that not an office has been abolished, not a salary reduced, nor any other expense of the Government retrenched, but that a large increase of officers has been recommended, and large appropriations called for, in addition to the present officers and the usual appropriations: That no reduction of the expenses of the Government need be expected, but if any change, there will be a large increase.

What is the fact? The present administration has expended during the year 1829, the first and only year it has been in power, the sum of $12,687,116.82 exclusive of payments on the public debt. The administration of Mr. Adams in the year 1828, exclusive of the payments made on the public debt, expended the sum of $13,321,875.83. Thus it is seen by an inspection of the Public Documents, that notwithstanding all that has been said against the present administration on account of the expense incurred in the recall of our Foreign Ministers, not in the confidence of our Chief Magistrate, notwithstanding the increase of population, and the growing wants of the country, notwithstanding the party opposed to the administration have constantly and unceasingly kept up the hue and cry against every effort at Retrenchment and Reform which has been recommended & attempted to be put in operation, yet the present administration have saved to the people, the immense sum of $634,659 01 in the first and only year it has been in power; besides paying more of the public debt by upwards of $300,000 than was paid in the same time by the late administration. The publication in the Gazette is without a name, we must therefore say it is the act of the Editor. What now shall we say of the Editor of a public journal, who will thus (with the Documents before him) attempt to lead the people into error? Let him show this statement to be false, let him show that we have ever (with the truth before us) published a falsehood to the people, and we will say such conduct deserves public execration; until then, we will only ask the people to hear both sides before they believe either. Does not this publication remind us of the slanders published against Gen. Jackson, and his family? Does it not recall to mind the coffin hand-bills, the monumental inscriptions, with all the other falsehoods published in the dying struggle of the fallen Coalition. Farmers beware! Mechanics beware! all is not gold that glitters. The wolf sometimes appears in sheep's clothing. Your present Chief Magistrate has never deceived you. The old farmer of Tennessee has never yet sought to promote his own good at the expense of his country:—Always willing to decline office, he has never accepted it but to preserve his country's liberties or rights; with such a man at the head of our government we need fear neither extravagance nor wrong.

MR. FOOT'S RESOLUTION.

This measure has been debated in the Senate, with much talent, and no small degree of acrimony. The friends of the Coalition, as usual claim the victory. Mr. Webster and Mr. Barton have been the Hector & the Sarpedon of the battle. "The great Daniel" and "the bold" "nervous" sarcastic "pungent" exhorting "sound" and "profound." Mr. Barton, have given Col. Hayne, and Mr. Benton cause to rue the hour, they roused this debate. We are always disposed to accord praise where praise is due. Mr. Webster is certainly a man of great talents. We wish we could say more in his favour. We have always regretted that he blasted his prospects, and blighted his fame in participating, in the corrupt contract, by which Mr. Adams was imposed on the people, as the President of the United States; on this point Mr. Webster felt indefensible, and in his last speech passed the subject with the cunning of a Rhetorician as a matter scarcely worth notice. Of Mr. Barton we know nothing further than what he says of himself, and what his Speech indicates "a Bastard son of the west." So says Mr. Barton. Perhaps he is the unalien offspring of a Yankee Trader and a Choctaw Squaw. In this debate he exhibited the character and feelings of a drunken Indian, and though his ruffian eloquence has received the plaudits of the Baltimore Chronicle, the New York Journal of Commerce, the Delaware Journal and the Easton Gazette, we strongly suspect it has greatly shocked the refined sensibilities and the classic taste of the Greeks.

We have become quite accustomed to the exaggerated praise which some men bestow upon their friends and the unqualified reprobation of their opponents. The same pen which proclaimed John Q. Adams an enlightened statesman, an able civilian, and an honest man, denounced General Jackson, a bully, a murderer, and a traitor. When Senator Chambers and his second, took the field at the late Presidential contest, the power of the Senator was said to be irresistible, and all his adversaries tied as Ulysses and his companions, did before Polephemus of old. We also heard that the mellow tones, and persuasive eloquence of the modern Cicero captivated all hearts, and turned back the tide of opposition? but where now are these mighty men, the one at the bottom of the ladder, and the other fast descending to him.

Mr. Benton is a man of powerful mind, his exposure of the childish folly of the Panama Mission, will long be remembered; he is an able and efficient Senator and when he quits the councils of the nation, he will be a public loss. Col. Hayne is a gentleman of exalted character, distinguished alike for his talents, and modesty. We recommend him as a pattern, to some of our acquaintance, whose ungratified pretensions, and corroding ambition, destroy the rank they would hold in society; which tho' very moderate would be of some value to themselves.

We strongly suspect, that the little fattle from Washington, comes from the same hand, which circulated some two years ago, the false and spurious pamphlets against Gen. Jackson. If we be right in this conjecture, we think it but small work for a Senator. We do not see that he has this season taken any prominent part in any important matter, except advocating a gratuity of $50,000,00 to Gales and Sexton. Instead of relating the incident of a Presidents dinner, and the party opinions of the comparative merits of Col. Hayne, and Mr. Webster, we think he had better show some merits of his own. Let him select some grand and important subject, and make a great speech; perhaps he might get himself Gazetted. It would be a very pleasant thing to open the Easton Gazette, and to find the great Mr.

Webster, the great Mr. Barton, and the great Mr. Chambers all in a row.

In looking over the appointments, made by our State Executive, we find the man of the Times, has no warrant to add Esquire to his name; if therefore he should have occasion to put "the screws, upon his delinquent subscribers he will have to use his "odd shillings" still. After his public solicitation, we fear he is sadly disappointed. We cannot offer him condempence. Truth and justice forbid us. Though not regularly bred to the types, we feel much concerned for the honour of the Fraternity; and should he be deeply mortified to see one of the Craft acting the part of justice shallow. We are sorry to see from some of his last numbers, that he has rejected the kind advice, we gave him for the improvement of his paper.

[For the Eastern Shore Whig.]

Queen-Anna's county, March 1st, 1830.

MR. GREEN,
A letter writer from Annapolis informs his correspondent at Easton, that Mr. Grason introduced a bill into the House of Delegates to withdraw the funds from the Centreville Academy, and distribute them through the county, and adds that it will be no bad affair for the Easton Academy. I take the writer of this letter to be one of the Talbot Delegates of the real old Adams stamp. I am quite content that the Easton Academy shall reap the full fruits of any error committed by our Delegation; but I think Mr. Grason understands the interests of his county as well, as this letter writer, and perhaps a little better. The donation to the Centreville Academy at present is $800,00 per annum, and as I have been informed there are ten pupils in the Classical Department. The State therefore at present pays $80,00 per annum for the tuition of each of those young gentlemen. Boys who are taught Latin and Greek, are generally gentlemen's sons who are able to pay for their Education; I am friendly to Education generally, but I think the maintenance of the State ought first to be extended to the destitute and the forlorn, though it is probable that this discipline of the Adams school will not agree with me. It would have been well, for the letter writer, to have informed his correspondent that Mr. Grason's Bill, by means of the donation, and by other funds belonging to the county, contemplates the establishment of schools, in every neighbourhood in the county, and by this means to instruct the poor and indigent free of expense.

It is much to be lamented that all public national establishments, are too often made engines of political practice. The West Point Academy during the administration of Mr. Adams was freely used to this end instead of selecting Cadets, from that rank of society who have no means of liberal education.—We find the sons of men of fortune and high families appointed, and I rejoice to find that this among other abuses is attracting the attention of Congress.

CLASSICAL ACADEMY FOR YOUNG LADIES.

MR. HART and Miss FENNELL respectively inform the public that they have opened a school at the old Bank in Easton, where Young Ladies will be faithfully instructed in all the branches of a Classical English education taught in the most respectable Academies of our large cities—together with the Latin and French languages, every department of useful and ornamental needle work, &c. &c. They bring with them satisfactory testimonials of their moral and literary qualifications, which they have placed in the hands of some of the most respectable gentlemen of the town, to whom they will refer all concerned. Every attention will be paid to the manners and moral culture of their pupils—while the most interesting industry will be exerted in imparting an education which will render them useful and happy. The government of the school will be kind parental and strict. A board of visitors chosen by the patrons of the school, will attend to a faithful examination of the young ladies, on the last Friday of every month, & report to the public. At the end of every quarter there will be an examination of the school to which all will be invited. A faithful journal of the conduct of each young lady will be kept, always open to the inspection of the visitors of the school, and to the parents and guardians of the children, and to no others.
