It is very common to say, that any thing which may be obtained for almost "nothing at all," is "dog cheap" By the following ex tract from a late English paper, it seems that the expression, however well understood, is not, in all cases, the most accurate. A well known pack, will in these times, bad, as they are, command a thousand guineas. But a very short time since, Mr. Osbaldestone sold ten couples of hounds for the same sum to Lord Middleton, and we have reason to believe be has hounds in his kennel for which he would not take two hun dred guineas a piece."

The disposal of the stock of Girard Bank on Wednesday and Thursday at the Masonie Hall, created as disgraceful a scene as that before. which took place when the subscriptions were taken for the Norristown and Philadelphia sail road, noticed at length in this paper -Tie instant the windows were opened on Wed. nesday morning, they were blockaded by hired gangs of ruffians, stripped to the buff, who effectually precluded all from obtaining access, excepting such as were connected with them. Of course no decent man would place himself in competition with them. Fighting and rioting continued throughout the day. A number of respectable citizens disgusted with the disgraceful proceedings, held a meeting on the spot, and offered a remonstrance to the commissioners against a course of action, calculated so eminently to bring them into discredit It was disregarded!

The fault is properly chargeable to the le gislature. They knew that these scenes must occur, unless the stock was disposed of in another way, but they preferred that they should occur rather than deprive their friends of the opportunity to make money by specul-tion .-Let the disgrace fall where it is due! - S.
