

POETRY.

From the United States Gazette.
THE SCOURGE OF MAN.
 Up from the oblivious stream of time, While health, life's watchful guardian, sleeps, With deathly wrath than war or crime,
 The scourge of by-gone ages sweeps, It comes to make its ghastly round, Death's dire and life-consuming slave;
 On Desolation's effrayed bound, To glean a harvest for the grave.

Man by its mandates bid to blight, From clime to clime unorg'd to fly;
 And summon all beneath its flight,
 To bid the world adieu, and die;
 Its course is on the death-frail gale, Patrid and rank with past decay—
 And nations wake the voice of wail, As dying myriads mark its way.

Nurs'd in man's cradle-clime to birth,
 The tainted scurge of Asia's skies, To thin the marshall'd hosts of earth, From life's loved Eden-land it flies.
 Voice answers voice with kindred dread, Where fear's high watch-tower looks afar,
 To count the doomed and bloodless dead,
 And guard home's confines from its war.

Thro' all the azure realms of day,
 The world, the teeming world to spread,
 It keeps its wild mysterious way,
 And streaks earth's surface with the dead.
 All nature to its rage resign'd, On man it breathes its baleful breath;
 Or racks with fear the tortur'd mind,
 To swell the wide domain of death.

Forth from the chambers of the sun, It wanders o'er the shuddering world; Around its mighty orb to run,
 To where its wings were first unfr'd.
 No mortal power confines its sway, Or soothes the havoc of its rage, Its course is with the god of day—Its circuit-term the circling age.

The scourg'd of life—the bright in name, Shall fall scarce honor'd by a tear; Youth—beauty—valor—worth and fame, Lie prostrate in its wild career.
 O'er all that lives its wings shall spread—O'er all that moves its blight shall come—Till hallow'd yawning jaws are fed, And nature's startled seals are tomb.

Where morning's sun delights to shine, Or evening weeps her tears of dew; O'er mountain's steep, or ocean's brine, Its wings their painless flight pursue.
 Its course is on, from land to land, Life's teeming offspring to consume:
 Till by its deadening odors fann'd, Earth rots and rolls a mighty tomb.

While shadowing earth beneath its wings, Its direful mission, was its fearful rite,
 To sweep the virtuous from the earth,
 To sweep the virtuous from the earth.

VIRGINIA SPIES.
 Fresh from the Belt,
 Fresh from the Belt,
 Till they beside their fellow clay,
 In sleep with us eternal lie.

Some planet of ill-omen'd sway, Lost in its errand through the sky, Cloth'd in the vapors of decay, May foul'd, through Heaven's pure ether, fly—A lurid, scathed, and tainted star, Death's beacon-orb to shine alone, While earth its blighting fumes afar, As sun-light glares on worlds unknown.

To nature's life controlling power, Sole, self-existent, and supreme,
 Our beings bow, and wait the hour That seals time's hope deluding dream.
 When Death's dread earnest draws nigh, To waste the peopled-homes of earth;
 'Tis man's to yield that spark and die, Which came unasked and gave him birth.

LIBERIA.
 Extracts of a letter from Lieut. Commandant BENJAMIN PAGE, Jr., dated "United States Schooner Boxer, off Cape Mesurado, 9th April, 1832," addressed to the Secretary of the Navy.

"There are six vessels laying in the harbor, and arrangements are making to establish a another settlement at Cape Mount, so that every thing looks encouraging. Between that Cape and this place, all along the sea shore, many inoffensive old men, women, and weakly persons belonging to the different inland kingdoms, are living in thick settlements, and are engaged in making salt; which is carried inland, about one hundred and twenty miles by them, and exchanged for ivory and other produce, which brings them to the Colony, at the rate of one dollar for every gallon of salt.
 I mention this in order to point out an error, which has been fallen into by some, in supposing that salt is a good article of commerce here. This is not the case, as foreign salt has been offered and rejected at forty cents per bushel. The Liverpool traders sometimes take it in as ballast, and carry it down to leavward to the river Cameroons. But no other than native salt, is encouraged by the interior natives, hereabouts, as they are jealous of encroachments upon this means of livelihood for their old and weakly.

"This subject is somewhat connected with the commerce of this country, concerning the condition and prospects of which, you have directed me to report particularly. It is not as extensive as that of the coast at large, as all vessels passing by, do not anchor, but still it is in a flourishing state. I have conversed with the most intelligent and have taken some time to look round for myself.— When I say that it is in a thriving state, I do not wish to be understood to mean that it is now or ever can be in such a state, independent of an industrious and persevering yeomanry.

"There appears to be several kinds of soil in the vicinity. To the South West of the town, close by, there is a large tract of excellent coffee land, the wild produce of which has been esteemed for its flavour as highly as that of Java coffee. Cultivation will somewhat improve it, and a single individual is now setting out a plantation of twenty thousand coffee trees, which is expected to be completed by May.

"Another quality of soil is that of Bushrod Island, which I understand is very similar in its location and formation to those lands on the coast of Georgia, where Sea Island cotton is raised. And another to the North and East of the Island is a large and rich tract of soil, suitable for raising sugar cane, rice, indigo, Indian corn and tobacco. These locations are close around the settlement, and this, I am informed, is the general quality of the soil of all this section of the Western coast a little removed from the sea.

"When it is taken into consideration, that such valuable articles of trade, as have been enumerated, can be cultivated at an expense of about five bars or one dollar and fifty cents a month; (five cents per day)—and sufficient rice for the daily subsistence of each native employed;—that these natives do not work like slaves, but are strong laborious people, who might be brought out of their habit, of giving up labor after the farming season is over, and employing their time in singing, and dancing;—and that these articles are in demand in our country, and in Europe—there is, that in proportion as an industrious farming interest is established which is disposed for agriculture and its peaceful pursuits, the commerce of the colony will flourish and keep pace with its exertions.

"There are several enterprising merchants here.—But at present they can do all, and even more than the business of the Colony; as they attend to some commission business, for houses, both in Europe, and the United States.
 It is not however a favorable spot for small store keepers, and wandering pedlars, who, I am told, generally become stript of what they may have got; and in wandering about in the interior for small traffic, disgust the natives by their immoralities, and thus create difficulties, and disturbances, which sometimes have resulted in their imprisonment, and a demand of ransom money. It is now pretty well understood here, that in general such persons only live and thrive as are willing to settle down on a farm, there to enjoy the fruit of their labor, and to dispose of the surplus to those very few traders which are necessary for the present state of things. And all those who, deceived by the Ethiopian notions which have been put abroad by some, expect success by any other means than those of industry, perseverance, and sobriety, certainly sink; and unless assisted by charity, until they can get into the performance of their proper work, would finally starve. As a little specimen of what might be done by the farmer it might be quoted, that a colonist at the upper settlement, (Caldwell,) at the junction of St. Paul's and Stockton rivers, of the name Jonathan James, from the Eastern Shore of Maryland, has raised, spun and wove cotton enough to clothe a considerable family.

"The number of colonists are now about twenty-seven hundred, amongst which there are four or five merchants of note.
 "I have inquired as to the state of health of the Colony. The report has been favorable and I am credibly informed, that Doctor Tod-son, the resident physician at Caldwell, loses hardly in the proportion of four out of every hundred of those who are taken with the country fever, through which ordeal all have sooner or later to pass.
 "I have visited both the day and Sabbath schools, and was pleased with the appearance of things; several of the children did themselves much credit.

"With all the advantages that have been enumerated it would be natural to expect to hear of the general contentment of the inhabitants, and so far as my personal observation has gone I have indeed found this to be the case. There have been some exceptions; but they are found amongst characters, who would be dissatisfied in any situation. Here, as well as elsewhere the contentment of the inhabitants, may be measured by their morality, industry and sobriety.
