United States' Magazine

OF THE

N the 1st of July, 1837, will be publish-Stagazine, under the above title, devoted to the principles of the Democratic party.

it has long been apparant to many of the reflecting members of the Democratic party ! of the United States, that a periodical for the advocacy and diffusion of their political principles, similar to these in such active and in fiential operation in England, is a desidera turn, which it was very important to supply in such an establishment will be obivious to -a periodical which should unite with the attractions of sound and vigorous literature, a political character capable of giving efficient support to the doctrines and measures of that arty, now maintained by a large majority of people. Discussing the great questions of before the country, expounding and ading the Democratic doctrine through the ele pens that that party can furnish, ticles of greater length, more condensed . hore claborate research, and more tone than is possible for the newspacess, a Magazine of this character bein instrument of mapprocable value enlightenment and formation of public , and for the support of the principles advocates. By these means, by thus ning and defending the measures of the Democratic party, and by always furto the public a clear and powerful ry upon those complex, questions of party which so often distract, and
