in this department the exclusiveness of party, which is inseparable from the political department of such a work, will have no place. Here we all stand on a neutral ground of equality and reciprocity, where those universal principles of taste to which we are all alike subject will alone be recognized as the common law. Our political principles cannot be compromised, but our common literature .t will be our common pride to cherish and extend, with a liberality of feeling unbiased by partial or miner views.

As the United States' Magaz ne is founded on the broadest basis which the means and influence of the Democratic party in the United States can present, it is intended to render it in every respect a thoroughly NATIONAL Work, not merely designed, for ephemeral interest and attraction, but to continue of permanent historical value.
