At the regular meeting of the Young Men's Bible Class of the M. E. Church, the following resolutions were adopted: Whereas it pleased Almighty God in His divine mercy to take unto Himself our beloved friend and brother, Norman Crow, and remove him from our midst, therefore be it resolved that it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed one to say that in regretting his removal from among us, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and esteem.

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the mother of the deceased brother, inscribed in the minutes of the class, and published in the county papers at large. Resolved that in their bereavement we tender the Mother and Sister of the deceased the sympathy and friendly feeling of the class, and with them, we mourn our mutual loss.

"The Village Blacksmith" To Be Shown For First Time On Local Screen

"Back to the classics" is in a fair way of becoming one of the most prized and popular of the Fox slogans, if one may judge from the increasingly long list of productions of this studio based on the recognized masterpieces of fictional literature.

The latest announcement is concerned with "The Village Blacksmith," the Longfellow poem beloved of schoolroom and library alike, whose numbers have been lispied by every tyro in reluctant search of possible education. The film which Fox had developed from the poet's theme will be shown for the first time on any local screen on Thursday and Friday of next week, at the Lyceum Theatre. The picture has been directed by Jack Ford. Paul H. Stone is responsible for the scenario.
