HOWARD TURNER,

THE SPOOKS ABOUT MONDAY NIGHT HERE

Chestertown observed Halloween as usual by having lots of fun. Hundreds of persons were in costume and paraded the streets in any old way while other hundreds sat in autos parked along the street and watched the antics with pleasure.

Emmanuel P. E. Church held a party and at the colored churches the children had a fine evening. About ten o'clock the students of Washington College garbed in pajamas paraded through the streets and serenaded all the professors. Later a bonfire was lighted at the college and a roll call of all students held.

Bond M. E. Church held a Halloween party Tuesday evening. The Triangle Club of Christ M. P. Church held a party at the home of Miss Ida Hawkins, near town.

Local police kept good order on Chestertown streets.

W. S. and A. M. Culp, of this town who were the lowest bidders for the erection of a primary school building in Rock Hall, all bids for which were rejected by the County Board of Education last week because they were in excess of the appropriation of $20,000 provided by the County Commissioners, are at work upon plans which may bring the cost of the new building within that amount, in which event it is indicated that the board will accept the proposition. There is an urgent need for a new primary school building in Rock Hall, to replace the old frame structure which has been in use for more than 50 years.

PENN. R. R. MAY WITHDRAW TRAIN

It has been rumored that there is a possibility that the Pennsylvania will make some change in its train service to Chestertown and in all probability this may mean the taking off of one train. Curtailment of service has been made by the Pennsylvania in one or two places on the Eastern Shore and this has been brought about by the great falling off in number of passengers.

For the past two or three years the number of travellers on the Pennsylvania road from Chestertown to Townsend has been considerably less than it had been in former years. Many times the train has had only a dozen passengers. Rumor has it that if it were not for the milk and express every train run would be done so at a loss.

Evidently the railroad has something like a change in contemplation and there must be some foundation for the many rumors that are now being heard.

E. A. Culver, agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad, when asked about it, said that he had no information concerning the matter and had never received any intimation that there would be any change.

SPAN 500 FEET LONG IN NEW BRIDGE PLAN

Company Files Revised Specifications For Chesapeake Project.

PETTIS TO HOLD A HEARING
W. R. BONSAL SAYS CHANGES MEET ALL OBJECTIONS OF BARGE INTERESTS IN CITY.

Providing a span with a horizontal clearance of 500 feet, believed sufficient to allow the passage of barge lines in the worst kind of weather, revised plans for the proposed bridge across the Chesapeake Bay were filed Friday with Major C. R. Pettis, War Department engineer for this district.

The plans also make other changes in the original proposals filed last summer with Major Pettis, but in all cases the revision provides greater clearance for vessels passing through or under the bridge.

W. Roscoe Bonsal, president of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Company, sponsor of the project, said the change in the plans met all objections from barge interests in Baltimore and Hampton Roads.

He said the changes would increase the cost of building the bridge several hundred thousand dollars and that they represented the most that could be done.

Philadelphia barge interests at recent hearings on the bridge proposals said they would not be satisfied with any proposal that did not include four 1,000-foot spans across the two bay channels.

Mr. Bonsal said that erection of such spans would increase the cost of the bridge by several millions of dollars and would be so prohibitive that the entire project would have to be abandoned if the War Department insisted on such requirements.

The original plans provided for a draw over the west channel with a horizontal clearance of 165 feet and one over the east channel with a horizontal clearance of 210 feet. The vertical clearance for both draws was proposed at 135 feet.

The first objections made to the bridge were that the draw over the west channel should be as great as that over the east channel. On the promise that this suggestion would be accepted the steamboat companies withdrew their objections, with one or two exceptions.

The barge companies, led by Philadelphia interests, however, asserted that a 210-foot horizontal clearance was not sufficient to permit the passage of a tow line of three, four or five barges in stormy weather or when the wind was blowing thirty-five miles an hour or more.

The barge company last Monday presented five tug captains to Major Pettis, who said that a clearance of 300 feet was sufficient for barge lines in all forms of weather that such shipping ventured out into the bay.

According to the present plans, the bridge will contain three set-spans which will have a horizontal clearance of 300 feet each and a vertical clearance of fifty feet and a fourth span with horizontal clearance of 500 feet and the same vertical clearance as in the other three spans.

These openings in the bridge will be in addition to the two draws, with horizontal clearance each of 260 feet and vertical clearance of 135 feet.

Barge lines and craft that do not require a vertical clearance greater than fifty feet will use the set spans and the draws will only have to be lifted for large vessels.

WILL TALK ON GOLF

A. H. Findlay, of Philadelphia, has accepted the invitation of the Chester River Yacht and Country Club to talk on Golf at the Court House on Tuesday evening, November 8th at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Findlay, a native of Scotland came to this country forty years ago, bringing with him expert knowledge of, and enthusiasm for, golf, which has been the national game of his country for nearly five centuries.

In popularizing the game in the United States, he stands second to none. He may very properly be called "The Father of Golf" on this side of the Atlantic.

The public is cordially invited to be present. Attendance on this occasion carries no obligation to become a member of the club.

The first large shipment of stock turkeys and show birds was made by the Baker's Maryland Turkey Farm on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, through the American Express Railway Co. The shipment was handled in a most careful manner. The birds, all of the best breeds, weighed from 10 to 15 pounds.

SALES OF PROPERTY

Wm. J. Maslin and wife have sold to Metcalf Bros. the Vickers Farm for $12,000. This property is located on Chester river and contains 340 acres. It includes Miller's Island one of the fine ducking places in Kent. Harry Toulson is the present tenant.

The Newsome Farms, near Locust Grove, containing 428 acres, have been sold by Robert R. Hill to Wm. Medders, of Still Pond. Price private.

The Jervis farm of 137 acres in the First district, near Cecilton, was sold Tuesday morning at the Court House door by Henry L. Constable, Esq., Trustee, to Jeremiah C. Price, for $4,300.

Harrison W. Vickers, Esq., Attorney, sold this week the H. L. Woodburn farm of 188 acres on Saxassafas river for E. L. Pyle. The purchaser is Clayton Charles Ingraham and wife and the price, while not stated, is said to be about $30,000. This is one of the most attractive estates in northern Kent.

GUNNING NOTES

About 800 sportsmen, shooting from sink boxes, sneak boats and blinds, made the Susquehanna flats sound like the Battle of the Marne half an hour before daylight Tuesday morning when the ducking season officially opened.

The day's record was made by State Senator S. Scott Beck and his colleague, Arthur H. Brice, of the House of Delegates, and Howard Owens, all of Kent county. They killed forty ducks and fourteen of them were reheads and canvassbacks. Maryland was represented by E. Lee Le Compte, State Game Warden, the Federal Government by Thomas Bloxam, Deputy United States Game Warden.

Chester river hunters started yesterday, which was the first day.

The season for rabbits and partridges starts next Thursday, Nov. 10th.

Clerk of the Circuit Court Robert R. Ayres has issued 523 county, 123 State and 11 non-resident licenses for the gunning season for wild ducks and geese which opened in the county Tuesday.

$1,000 RAISED FOR REPAIRS

Sunday was a "red letter" day in the life of Christ M. P. Church and put to the test the faith of its people. Under the supervision of the Trustees of the Church a number of improvements were made to the church and parsonage property, including the repair of the steeple, re-leading of all memorial windows in the auditorium and Sunday
