This editor knows his FACTS ... and his storp is worth reading

he says .-

In the early part of 1926 I came into possession of a second-hand Ford that had been badly treated. The motor was in bad shape and the old car was otherwise run down and it was next to impossible to start it in the morning. I had a special reason for not wanting to put out any money for repairs on the car and intended, if possible, to get along with it for awhile, making it somehow fill my needs without extra expense. Just at that time there were half a dozen so-called high-powered gasolines coming into notice, some with one name and color and some with another, and I tried out one or two of these with poor results.

Finally, I noticed a tank of Esso in town and having just read one of your advertisements and knowing that the Standard never gets behind anything that is not first-class, I decided to try it out. I knew if it came up to your claims, it would help me solve my motor expense. You can imagine my pleasure when I filled up on this red gas and stepped on the starter and my motor "kicked off" like a shot. After a few weeks Esso cut all the carbon out and the motor was as clean as a hound's tooth and I ran that old motor 7,000 miles in addition to the 22,-000 it had already made when I got it and never put out another cent for repairs. The man I got it from asked me about five months afterward, if I had ever had the motor overhauled and was astonished to find that I had not and that it was running better than when I got it. I traded the old car in after it served my purpose without any extra expense.
