FOR 8 years Baker's Bronze Beauties
have been bred, fed and cared for to produce the highest quality stock and show birds. Each year we are building up a stronger disease resistance and heavier egg laying strain. In any business you get no more than the quality you pay for. You pay only a few dollars more for our stock than you do for stock that has been raised principally for slaughter.

We again have 1,000 birds to select from and we have had no epidemic or sickness in our four flocks. Neither did we lose 350 turkeys during a windstorm in the early summer, as some of the papers said we did.

Gobblers from $20, Pullets from $15, all well bronzed birds of large size. Have a few birds with peculiar colors in their feathers but just as large and as healthy as any for $15 per Gobbler and $12 for Pullets.

Four unrelated blood lines to select from.
Show Stock quoted on request.

GUNNING SEASON OPENS

According to the number of gunning licenses issued at the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court, indications point to an unusually active season not only in the wild duck blinds scattered along the shores of the rivers and bay, but also during the season for shooting rabbits and partridges which begins November 10 and continues until December 31. At sunrise on Friday guns began to boom on the ducking shores, and there are already a beautiful supply of ducks feeding on the shores which have been baited with thousands of bushels of corn. Clerk of the Court Shalcross reports that 464 county licenses have been issued at $1.25 each; 94 statewide licenses at $5.50 each, while 15 non-resident licenses have been granted at $15.50 each, mostly to prominent Wilmington, Baltimore and Philadelphia sportsmen who have purchased ducking shores in the county during the year. The sportsmen throughout the county report a beautiful supply of rabbits and partridges in sections of the county, and Deputy Game Warden Edgar J. Watson issued a warning to all gunners during the season, and heavy penalties inflicted for violations.

GOV. AL. SMITH Democratic Candidate For President

Why You Should Vote For GOV. AL. SMITH

He secured laws eliminating child labor.
He secured the 48-hour law for women in industry.
He sponsored the establishment of widows' pensions and the board of child welfare.
He made the Sheppard-Towner act for maternity and infant welfare available for New York State.
He has favored and helped to obtain equal pay for women for equal work in the teaching profession.
Upon his recommendation a crime commission to study causes of crime and methods of prevention was created.

PROGRESSING SATISFACTORILY

The Baltimore Association of Commerce in forming a Committee on Trade Relations asked to have a representative of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce on the committee. Prof. Wm. R. Howell, of Washington College, was appointed to serve. A luncheon meeting was held on October 16 at the Emerson Hotel. At this meeting Prof. Howell stated that in the problem of Trade Relations between Baltimore and the Chesapeake Bay territory the Chesapeake Bay Bridge was one of the keys to the whole situation. After discussion, it was decided that the committee should send a request through Mr. Calutice, Secretary of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, to the Bridge Committee of the Association asking them to make a report on the status of the bridge plans. On October 24, Prof. Howell received a letter from Warren T. King, Secretary of the Trade Relations Committee which is hereby quoted in part as follows: "We have just had a conversation with Colonel Stuart S. Janney, Bridge Company, and he advises us that action by the State Highway Commissioner on the bridge plans is progressing very satisfactorily and that he expects the plans to be approved and released within a week's time. He told us that he expected the work to go ahead from now on without any undue delay."

RED CROSS IN COUNTY

Miss Miriam Kincheole, of the nutrition service of the American Red Cross, arrived in Chestertown Wednesday of last week for three months service in the county. Miss Kincheole will take up the nutrition problems of the county and will cooperate with the schools, P. T. A.'s, Health Association and community clubs and will help with any individual nutrition problems that may be called to her attention. Her headquarters will be at the Elementary School Building, phone 59.

TURKEY MEET AND TOUR

The second annual Kent County Turkey Tour and Field Meeting is set for Thursday, November 8. In the event that Thursday is a rainy day the tour and meeting will be held the following day. The tour is sponsored by the University of Maryland Extension Service, of which County Agent Horace B. Derrick is the local representative.

Walter J. Shearer from Vinemont, Pa., visited the Jervis Turkey Farm near Still Pond this week and purchased a truck load of fine breeders. Mr. Shearer raised eighty thousand white peck ducks this year besides many leghorn chickens and several hundred turkeys. Mr. Cummins, who is one of Pennsylvania's largest dairymen also purchased breeders at the Jervis Turkey Farm this week.

The best feature about the popular songs of the present day is that they do not last long.

CANDIDATE GETS GREAT SUCCESS BIG RECEPTION TURKEY RAISING

The Baltimore Sun of last Tuesday says: Governor Smith brought his campaign for the Presidency to Baltimore yesterday, and after his people had opened their hearts to him, he opened his heart to them in an address in the Fifth Regiment Armory last night that flamed with indignation against the "forces of intolerance" now united to accomplish his defeat.

Casting aside all squeamish reservation and calling names, he tore into the "political blackmail" practiced by the "narrow, prejudiced and bigoted" Anti-Saloon League of America.

A moment later he pilloried the "hollow mockery" of the Ku Klux Klan, which he asserted had "raised between heaven and earth the emblem of the Christian faith as a defiance of me because of my religious belief."

And in the next breath with a burst of eloquent scorn he cried: "I would rather go down to ignominious defeat than to be raised to the greatest position in the gift of the people by any influence that may be exerted by any organization with such perverted ideas of Americanism."

More than 20,000 Baltimoreans, massed about him in the armory, responded to these sentiments with wave of enthusiasm almost terrifying in its intensity and its volume.

There have been rapturous demonstrations elsewhere for his candidate—many of them—but there has been none more frenzied than those which swept the great hall again and again as he laid down the counts of his indictment of the party in power, of its candidate and of the "cold-blooded threats" of the forces allied with Hoover.

Before this speech tens of thousands of other Baltimoreans jammed the downtown section of the city to catch a glimpse of the candidate and the brown derby and to roar their greeting.

The greatest multitude gathered at Fayette and Howard streets. As the candidate approached it swept through the police lines at this point in irresistible, choking the street and closing the passage. It was with difficulty that the motor-cycle corps and the mounted police pushed their way through and rescued the embargoed parade.

Baltimoreans visited an innovation upon their distinguished guest. They showered Governor Smith with cut flowers. Other cities had buried him under avalanches of confetti and ticker tape, but it remained for Baltimore to add the more charming touch to the picture.

The armory opened for the crowds at 3:30 o'clock and was packed long before Senators Bruce and Tydings took charge of the meeting at 8 o'clock with partisans who sang and cheered and then sang some and cheered some more.

Never was an assemblage more eager to burst loose.

It was wound up to the last turn, but it did not have a fair chance until Governor Ritchie took the platform.

Then there came volleys after volleys of shrieking responses to Governor Ritchie's resounding Smith sentiments. It was a tearing, rip-roaring time they had.

Nor did they confine their outbursts to the applause of approval. Again and again they boomed the name of Charles E. Hughes, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., the Rev. John Roach Straton and others of their camp. And they did it with a mighty voice.

Howard Gruce, Democratic National Committee man, called the meeting to order and Governor Ritchie introduced Governor Smith after a great outburst that shook the armory as it has not been shaken since the hosts of Democracy paraded and stormed within its grim walls as they nominated Woodrow Wilson for President in 1912.

When Governor Smith was recognized making his way to the front of the platform this adoring mass of people went into an ecstasy of joy.

The band gave notice of his arrival when it burst into "The Sidewalks." Senator Bruce had been speaking, but he was cut off in the middle of a sentence. There was a delay of two or more minutes, maybe four. Perhaps it was a false alarm, the crowd thought.

Not at all. He was there, the Smith smile spreading as he saw this vast throng in near-delirium.

But the climax was reached when Mrs. Woodrow Wilson came from the background and stood for a moment between the Governor and Mrs. Smith.

While many farmers, not only in Kent, but all over the country, are bemoaning the awful conditions prevailing on the farms there are exceptions.

Next Thursday County Agent Horace B. Derrick has arranged to hold the second annual "Turkey Trot" and those who join this tour will have their eyes opened to one of the greatest industries in the United States.

Last year Mrs. Harold M. Baker, of Quaker Neck, astonished the public by raising 1,000 turkeys from 40 hens and this year her flock of 1,000 turkeys was raised from 45 hens.

Another Richmond has entered the arena and on Wednesday the News man visited this new ranch. It is the turkey farm of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jarvis at Still Pond. Mr. Jarvis may be seen a beautiful flock of over 1500 birds. A buyer from a big farm north of Philadelphia was there Wednesday and purchased 27 fine stock birds.

His big flock was raised from 51 hens, the Toms weighing around 45 pounds. Albert Jarvis and his brother have sleeping quarters within a few yards of the turkeys and they keep a close watch on them. It is one of the most beautiful scenes in the country. Here the birds of different ages strut and trot about the green fields while large flocks of sheep with corn in the shock make up the picture. Mr. Jarvis is fortunate in having a helpmeet to the manor born and who is invaluable in the business. They took their first day's "holiday" Tuesday when they attended Mrs. Dixon's party.

Aside from this Mrs. John Biggers in the upper section of the county has a flock of 600 snob birds which she is developing for the winter shows and as for stock purposes, and Prof. Derrick decided upon the turkey tour plan this year in order that the people of the State and country at large may see what it means to grow from 1000 to 1700 turkeys on one farm.

There are other flocks of several hundred or more turkeys being grown in all sections of the county this season, and it is believed that the turkey tour will prove popular with those interested in the industry. Those who have made a survey of the flocks in the county this season estimate that the county's turkey crop will be worth more than $300,000 this year, which will go a very long way towards assisting the farmers to overcome the failure of the asparagus, tomato, and corn crops.

The Paramount News Company and Pathe News have taken moving pictures of Kent's big turkey flocks and these pictures will appear soon at the Lyceum.

TURKEY SELLING POOL

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce and the Executive Committee of the Chestertown Mercantile Section was held at Chamber headquarters last Wednesday night to discuss the possibility of the organization assisting the turkey growers of Kent and adjacent counties to obtain better marketing prices for Thanksgiving and Christmas birds.

Last year's turkey crop amounted to $350,000, and more, for Kent alone. Those who are watching the turkey situation carefully estimate from twice to three times as much for this year. It has been pointed out that the quantity will be more than the small local buyers would care to handle, therefore a larger and more lucrative market will be sought.

After a discussion of the problem the following committee was appointed: M. deK. Smith, Jr., chairman; Harold M. Baker and E. Conly Noland. Since business and agricultural prosperity are so closely linked, the business interests of the county are willing to work through the Chamber which will place its machinery at the disposal of the work of starting a turkey selling pool in Kent county and neighboring sections. This turkey pool will follow the plans of the Idaho pool which has operated successfully for five years.

With Maryland turkeys selling at ten cents more per pound in the New York markets above the price of turkeys from other sections Kent growers are in a position to receive top prices.

KENT BOYS HONORED

Members of the Kent County Boys' 4-H Club were guests of the Rotary Club at a dinner in their honor Monday evening, Austin F. Shure presiding. County Agent H. B. Derrick was also a guest. The event is in recognition of the showing made by the poultry judging team which ranked third in the annual State poultry judging contest at the Hagerstown Fair, and in honor of Frank Sutton, of the State dairy cattle judging team, which was ninth in the national contest at Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Derrick was the coach of the judging team and Assistant County Agent Miller had charge of the poultry judging team. He was also a guest at the dinner.
