Your Profit Depends on 4 Operations

THE profit to be made from threshing your crops or those of your neighbors depends largely upon how well your thresher performs these four operations: (1) feeding; (2) threshing; (3) separating; (4) cleaning.

Let us discuss the first one here, for feeding is the key job that largely affects the other three.

You want a thresher with a feeder that can be set to feed high or low on the cylinder as conditions may require. High, when the bundles are damp, or the grain is tough or tangled. Low, for dry, easily threshed grain. Only a Case thresher can give you this important and exclusive feature. This adjustment can be easily made while the thresher is running.

You want a thresher with a feeder that gives you complete control of the straw. In a Case, the volume is controlled at two points—by the straw shoes and upper feed rakes. Result, maximum capacity without overloading the cylinder. Another exclusive Case advantage.

When you own a Case thresher you have no worry. Whether the grain is long or short, wet, damp or dry, straight or tangled, the efficient Case feeder responds always with a uniform and continuous stream of grain to the cylinder. No crop is too difficult to thresh.

And so it is with the Case thresher all the way through. Its many exclusive features will save your grain and make more profit for you. Its simplicity makes it easy to operate. Come in when you're in town.
