"I AM STILL RICH"

We have passed through a panic, suffered from a crash on the stock market, and are now more than halfway through the depression, and I am still rich.

It may be true that I have much less to live on than I had a year ago, but it is certainly true that I have just as much as ever to live for.

The depression has not lowered the value of a single friendship. Neighbors still greet us in the same old cordial way; business associates believe in us; and our sons hold us in high respect.

Laborers worked 10 hours per day and never went on strike. No tips were given to waiters and you didn't give the hat checker money to get your hat back after you had paid three times as much as it was worth.

A coal stove in the parlor, a kerosene hanging lamp in the sitting room, the family horse and phaeton in the stable represented the height of wealth and luxury.

No one ever heard of microbes and calories, no one had undergone an operation for appendicitis, and glands had absolutely no commercial value.

Folks lived to be a good old age and every year walked miles to wish their friends a Merry Christmas.

And now my dear friend think about today. Everyone rides in automobiles, or flies in airplanes, plays golf, poker, bridge and shoots craps. Woolen underwear is vulgar and the only charms the ladies HIDE are their EARS.

Many smoke cigarettes and violate the Volstead Act. No one ever goes to bed the same day they get up and—Everyone blames the H. C. of L. on the Republicans and after drinking toilet water, Hair Tonic, Cologne and Lemon Extract make themselves believe they are having a fine time.

These are days of profiting, excess taxes, country clubs, hundred miles an hour living and prohibition and if you feel as we do, that life is worth living, it is a real and definite pleasure for us to extend to you that old-fashioned but very, very sincere wish: A MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Canada is shipping some $5,000,000 Christmas trees into the United States this year. They evidently think we have something to hang on them!

IN MEMORIAM In memory of my sister, Henrietta Fox. Three sad years have passed dear sister Since we laid you in your grave, But my love is still the same As when you went away.

Dearest sister how I miss you In this cold and friendless world, But I hope to meet you When my sorrows are all passed.

A CHRISTMAS GREETING

As a unique example of a Christmas greeting, we submit the following. It depicts graphically the changes from the old to new and reveals the virus of speed, jazz, or whatever it may be called, has been injected into the veins of present day people, and gives one pause to think whether the new is preferable:

Let one take you back 30 years. Do you remember when: eggs were 10c per dozen and milk 5c a quart. The butcher gave soup bones and liver away and treated kids with bologna, the hired girl got $2.00 a week and did the washing.

Women didn't play bridge, poker, gamble, powder and paint, they didn't smoke, vote, go without woolen underwear, do the black bottom, Charleston, or shake the shimmy. Men wore whiskers and boots, chewed tobacco, spit on sidewalks and loafed.

Laborers worked 10 hours per day and never went on strike. No tips were given to waiters and you didn't give the hat checker money to get your hat back after you had paid three times as much as it was worth.

DON'T SPREAD YOUR GERMS

If you find yourself developing a cold, take the best possible care of yourself. Get rid of it as soon as you can, but have some thought for the other fellow also. Keep your cough, your sneezes and your germs to yourself. Don't broadcast them. If you have to cough or sneeze, do it in your handkerchief, please. Wait until you are well to shake hands. Show your friendliness in other ways. This is the advice of Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health to victims of the ever-present and so-called "common" cold.

"We talk about catching a cold," Dr. Riley continued, "but usually the cold catches us. It usually finds us when our powers of resistance develop a 'cold,' becomes a carrier of the disease, temporarily at least. While in that state, he is a menace to all who come in contact with him. A sort of endless chain is established that is hard to break.

"What we call a 'cold' is brought about by organisms so minute that they cannot be seen even by the most powerful microscope. These organisms are found in the secretions from the nose and throat of those who are suffering from a cold. When they cough or sneeze the germs are sprayed out into the air, or into the face of persons nearby.

"Some of this infective material is also left on the hands every time the victim touches his mouth or nose, and the germs are carried to everything the sufferer touches. On that account handshaking is one of the things that should be omitted by the person who has a cold. Another way by which the person is suffering from a cold can help to protect others is by washing his hands frequently and thoroughly, with plenty of soap and water.

"The person who has a cold needs a quiet, a very light diet, the advice of his own doctor, and proper the quickest way to get rid of it and the best way to prevent it from getting it, is to send for your doctor, or until the symptoms have passed and your
