THE OYSTER QUESTION will no doubt be a prominent one to settle by the next legislature and it is a very important one to our people. Our Rock Hall correspondent writes in another column that there have been more oysters caught this year than for years. He says that all the oystermen need is a rigid enforcement of the cull law and that it be made applicable to the buyer as well as to the tonger. We do not need a shortening of the season in Kent. If Dorchester or Queen Anne's wants a shortened season they can have it, but we do no want it here.

Messrs. J. K. Aldridge and J. W. Lam bert returned from their gunning trip in St. Mary's county Saturday morning, having bagged 96 birds. The county had been well hunted before our town sportsmer reached there and this accounts for the scarcity of game. While in St. Mary's these two gentlemen visited Point Look-Out and discovered a cemetery in which were buried Confederate dead. A large monument five feet square at the base and rising twenty feet attracted their attention. On it was inscribed: "Erected by the State of Maryland in memory of the Confederate soldiers who died prisoners of war at Point Look-Out from March, 1864, to June 30, 1865 dulce et decorum est pro patri mori." The dead from Virginia buried on that field was put down at 640; North Carolina 962; South Carolina 248; Georgia 249; Alabama 75 Tennessee 63; Louisana 38; Mississippi 42; Florida 31; Kentucky 18; Texas 6; Maryland 6; Arkansas 4; Missouri 4; Confederate States not designated 518. "At the cost of patriotism and duty they encountered the perils of the field, endured the trials of a prison and faithful even unto death." The total number that died in prison between the dates named was 3,004 of plank, but these marks were burned and this monument afterward built.
