What is Style?

The word style, though but a diminutive word, assumes to itself more contradictions and significations and eccentricities than any other monosylable in the language i legitimately entitled to. It is an arrant lit-tle humorist of a word and full of whimment in the pursuit of this phantom style, yet in almost all of them there is a strange a barouche and four, but a duke-oh! a duke cannot possibly lumber his style China a puissant mandarin loads at least grown sheep at the Cape of Good Hope trails along his style on a wheelbarrow. a lady can put on without danger of suffo-cation. Here it is otherwise, and consists in the quantity she can put off without the risk of freezing. A Chinese lady is thought prodigal of her charms if she exposes the the ardent gaze of bystanders. This style has ruined the peace and harmony of many a worthy household, for no sooner do they set up for style but instantly all the honest old comfortable furniture Grecian chairs, Egyptian tables, Turkish improvement in furniture demands an increase in the domestic establishment; and a family that once required two or three servants for convenience, now employs the sage's sermon. Early rising promotes pacities of enjoyment and channels of delight to which the sluggard must be insensible, says the N. Y. Journal. It increases the sum of human existence by stealing from indolence hours that would be utterly wasted, and, better still unquestionably conduces to longevity. All long livers have been early risers. Now, the habit of retiring to bed at late of the other. From six to eight hours are generally held to be sufficient, and no doubt on the average are so. Our sleep is regulated much by the season. In winter people lie longer, on account, as they say, of its being too dark to get up early. There is some plausibility in the reason but the system in cold and dark weather is more prone to sleep than in light and sunny times. Invalids need generally plenty of bed rest, but they should procure it by going early to bed.

There is more health and strength to be found in the practice of seeing the sun rise than in looking at it in any other part of A Million Friends. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Colds.—If you have never used this Great you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs.
