Christmas Valentine THE lonely old lady sat in the twilight as the evening star looked in through the window and wondered why she seemed so sad. The star was bright enough that Christmas Eve to guide anyone to gladness, but she who sat there did not appear to know it. There were yet a few sparks amid the ashes of the hearth fire, and warmth had not wholly departed from the room; there were points of light in the maze of memories that kept the past alive, and at heart the silent thinker was not cold; but darkness was creeping over solitude, and time was registering age, and the old lady was lonely. There was a picture on the wall of one who had been the strength and joy of earlier days, but years had passed over his grave in a distant

There were other pictures looking down upon her with young and happy faces, but they were pictures of children who had blessed other homes, placed about to keep company with her dream children, and reminding her now again that she had none.

So the star might have known that there was reason for pensiveness as it tried to penetrate the gathering gloom and the mystery. But whether it learned the secret or not, it witnessed as it watched, a light in the dim room. For she had taken from a portfolio her most precious possession, and she was smiling upon it. It was an old valentine, the last that she had received from him who had never returned. It was inscribed "To My Valentine." Upon it sat Cupid, in a wreath of forget-me-nots, holding a high pyramid of large roses over a large, circular spider web, with two hearts entangled in it! The star must have recognized that it was shining upon the deathlessness of love, and helping it to share the Christmas fellowship and cheer.-Christopher G. Hazard.

He-You wouldn't marry me for my money, would you, dear? She-N-n-no, but around Christmas it's awfully tempting.

Christmas Bells

Ringing the message now, as then,

by Thomas Taylor

RANSFORMED and filled with sacred light, With music lifting and sublime-Inspiring like a Gothic arch.

Or like a great Homeric rhyma-So all appears; again has come The joys of Christmas time.

With his celestial sway.

What magic power has swept the land? Good-will to men where yesterday Most had forgot the lessons taught That night to shepherds far away! The prince of peace again has come.

More wondrous than the Midas touch That turned the flowers and walls to gold. That spirit that transforms where'er The story of the Christ is told, And adds a splendor to surpass All Eden's flame of old.

So in the maddening rush of life Let us remember why He came And tasted sorrow; let us pause To honor once again his name, Whose loving kindness and whose law Will ever be the same.

His plan, though unfulfilled today, Must last till skies and starlight facle, Enhancing all the things of life For human joy and welfare made. And spreading radiance far and wide To farthest waste and glade.

The Magi, following the star, Had learned the golden lesson well Of why One from beyond those heights Should come to earth to humbly dwell; Each knew the thrill we feel today

They saw before the winding way O'er wastes and platns of striving years-And farther on, beyond it all, The shining castles free from tears, Where some day man shall know the truth

And drop his hates and fears. Peace on the earth, good-will to men-At last they'll reign from shore to shore

Unceasing, bearing perfect light; Then on the desert sands of yore The rose and lily shall appear To bloom forevermore.
