THANKSGIVING

No nation in the world has a holiday quite so unique and so different from the average holiday as does the United States in the celebration Thanksgiving. The outgrowth of a custom inaug- to forget that the eleven representurated long before the nation was founded, Thanksgiving has continued to grow. The people of the United States have continued to observe this day as a time set aside to render thanks to God for his merciful kindness and boutiful goodness.

The United States has much to be thankful for at this Thanksgiving time. While thousands of men in other nations are idle and discontent spreading throughout their lands, we in this country and enjoying prosper-

CHRISTMAS SEALS

With the close of the annual drive for membership in the Red Cross coming today, a second drive, of no less importance, begins tomorrow. On Thanksgiving Day the Red Cross Christmas Seals are placed on sale. At a penny each the seals are sold and every one purchased aids that much in the fight against the white plague, tuberculosis.

For several years the proceeds from the sale of these seals has been used in a war against the dreaded disease. Big strides have been made in the treatment, cultailment and prevention of the disease but it is by no means wiped out. The war continues; the fight is on;

'Tis said that a great corporation has no soul, but I say ye nay and refer you to the Western Union. Last Christmas time the company revealed that somewhere in the clicking castle that serves as their headquarters they have a ers. They concoct messages for every occasion. Last month they brought to light the work of their official telegraph cheer leader. Now it is possible to cheer your football team on to victory by Western Union. Catalouged as "Suggested 'Pep' Messages" and "Cheer by Western Union" these canned cheers fill a space long empty in

In this busy world, it is too easy ing the alma mater is clashing today with old Squawbash. And even if you remember you are probably too taken up with business to attend the game and lend your voice in sending alma mater's praises to the sky. You aren't able to be there and toss your hat in the air to the tune of "three long ones for the team and let's make 'em big."

But leave it to Western Union, the corporation with a soul. They'll help you cheer. Just step into a Western Union office and ask for a copy of their "suggested 'pep' messages." Take number one, for in-

There may be some objection to that last, for among the things that boys, and football players possess, are two feet, a pair of fists and some very fine teeth. If they fought with these there might be some complaint from the opposition. But Western Union lapsed into its old ways and left the job unfinished. What of messages to the opposing team? In case the Western Union wishes to add a folder of such greeting
