YOUR JOB

John D. Rockefeller last week celebrated the seventy-second anniversary of the day on which he got his first job. He was sixteen years old and is now eighty-eight. Young gentlemen will observe that Mr. Rockefeller took that first job seriously and worked hard at it, although no office boy would condescend to accept twice as much now.

Those that smile when told Mr. Rockefeller's story have the first dollar he ever earned should remember that he also has the first HUNDRED MILLION dollars he ever earned—which is no laughing matter—and the second, third and fourth hundred million.

Also Mr. Rockefeller, since he took that small job, in 1855, has given away, to science, charity and education, more than five hundred million dollars. It pays, apparently, to take your job, big or little, seriously.

EVENTUALLY

Sooner or later, of course, the United States will have three distinct arms for national defense, an Air Department taking its place with that of Army and Navy. There will be a Secretary of equal ranking, with place in the President's cabinet—and unless the trend of the times is entirely misleading, the Air Department will rank of first importance.

Old ideas die slowly. Power gives up its throne ungraciously. It has always been thus. Great minds have usually been persecuted and punished for daring to try to change the order of things—even for distinct advancement of mankind.

Former Colonel William E. Mitchell of the U. S. Army Air Division dared some two or three years ago to tell us what we needed in the air to keep abreast of other nations. He advocated an Air Department under its own head and command, Army and Navy—to the extent that those departments have always been separated. It was not long until he found himself back in private life.

The American Legion in its Paris convention, just closed, has gone on record for an Air Department—as a new and separate unit of our defense. Of course it will not come soon because Washington does not operate that way. But eventually—

Does the reader of these lines know a man better qualified to head the department than William E. Mitchell? The nation owes it to him.

SOON NOW

Amundsen and Noble continue their quarrel as to which deserves credit for their dirigible flight over the North Pole. Noble says: "Mussolini ordered the flight; Italians made it possible and built the dirigible. I ran the airship. Italy deserves the credit." Amundsen, in a book just published, says he deserves the credit and that Mussolini admitted it.

What interests Americans is that while Amundsen and Noble, who had a long start, were getting ready, Commander Byrd, a young American, jumped into his airplane and flew over and around the North Pole twice, the first man that ever did that.

Commander Byrd, who speaks about flying with authority, says the real plane eventually will be a liner with ten motors, going 500 miles an hour, able to fly five days without stopping. Such a ship could cross the ocean in six hours, fly around the world in two days. Millions now living will see that machine and greater machines.

Fifteen New Officers On State Police Force

Fifteen new members of the State police force began their duties last Saturday despite the failure of their motorcycles to arrive on time. The new men bring the total force of the state police body to fifty.

Captain Harry Butler, of Queens-town, said that two of them would be placed in each of the five sub-stations throughout the state to learn the clerical end of their duties.

I have often wished that some day I might be a great man and like all men, including the great, the great and never great, have a birthday. This would be the occasion for the photographers to appear and pose me for the people of many nations to see. Reporters would interview me, asking my opinion on all the important subjects of the day.

But some how the more I think of it the less it seems to appeal to me. Not that I have anything against the photographers. Some of my best friends are photographers, and I might say some of the best photographers are my friends. One photographer even gave me a tip on the last race at Havre de Grace. The horse didn't win but the picture shooter meant well.

And it can't be that I have anything in particular against my own ilk. It might be that I can't imagine a reporter asking me any other question than, "Got a match?" or maybe "Lend me two bucks until Saturday?"

Yet, even if I have nothing against the photographing and news-writing gentlemen as a whole, or any particular photographer or reporter, I can imagine many ways that would suit me better to spend a birthday than playing ring-around-rosy with a mass of correspondents and their official camera men.

Still another reason why the "great man birthday party" doesn't appeal to me is that even though the great men are asked many questions on as many different subjects they are no more capable of deciding the problems of the world than you or maybe your humble columnist.

Henry Ford is a great man. The General Motors may dispute that but anyhow he is. When he has a birthday the newswriters flock around and ask him such questions as "Is there a God?" Now without any definite information at hand as to just how Mr. Ford answered that query I am going to spring my answer, "What do you think about it?" Now if Mr. Ford can answer it better than that let him.

The system used is entirely wrong. Just because Mr. Ford is a great inventor we on the newspapers want to ask him what he thinks of prohibition and the foreign policy of our country, knowing very well that he can be a great inventor and still not know a thing about prohibition or if there are such things as foreign policies.

Then after a few more questions such as "where do we go when we die?" a few more photographs of the great man are snapped, there is a round of hand shaking and the birthday of the great man is brought to a close.

For this reason I may change my mind about being great and famous and be neither. But in case that I am and when my sixtieth or eightieth birthday rolls around my present intention is to have not a single photographer at my birthday party and no reporter but myself.

The other evening a discussion arose as to whether an advertisement in a newspaper of "money lost" ever brought results. No one present could answer for Chestertown, but one of the party, a traveler, reported the following incident:

Once while in Fort Worth, Texas, he lost a pocket book containing some thirty dollars. After discovering the loss he came to the conclusion that the only place where it could have been mislaid was in the restaurant where he had eaten his dinner. A careful search of the restaurant failed to bring the pocketbook to light so a small ad was inserted in the morning paper.

That evening the pocketbook was returned and with it a note, saying that the pocketbook had been found while the finder was drunk and all the money spent for whiskey but that on pay day all of it would be returned. The owner of the pocketbook answered the letter, using the box number given, saying that he would insist that the finder keep half. And the owner of the pocketbook got his half.

"Speaking of the younger generation," writes H. B. from New York, "you must hand it to them for cleverness and quick thinking. And at the same time it is easy to see why so much is being put over on the parents today.

"I have a friend who is an artist. He does a great deal of work with nudes. One day the mother of one of his models was visiting the studio and the daughter was showing her around. The mother, examining everything closely, came upon what was undoubtedly a portrait of her daughter in the nude.

"Ann," said the mother, very severely, "you don't mean to say you posed for that?"

"No, mother dear," replied the daughter, "he painted it from memory."

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT... BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

You Need Never Change Your Oil if You Own a Buick

Last year Buick said: "Change your oil only four times a year." Buick tests at that time had shown that oil changes would never be necessary, with the Oil Filter to remove impurities, and the Crankcase Ventilator to prevent oil dilution. Now, more than a year has passed, and Buick owners in every section of the world—under every climatic condition—have also proved that you never need change your oil if you own a Buick—replenishment and inspection of the Buick Oil Filter only are required.

KIBLER'S CORNER

No. 27. Wednesday, October 5th Vol. 1

One of our friends went home the other night and told his wife he was getting ahead at last. And this is what she replied: "Well, heaven knows you need one."

A lady in this town says she has reached the age where dancing makes her tired, eating makes her fat, and the radio makes her sleepy.

Phone 149 for Coal, and your order will have immediate attention. You'll find our coal is economical, because it is clean and free from foreign matter. Try a ton.

Say, how do you dispose of all the tin cans out at your house?

Never brag. But if you must, it is safer to brag about what you have done than about what you are going to do.

A traveling man was telling us the other day about a farmer he knew who had one of those old fashioned dinner bells mounted on a tall pole. One day somebody rang it too hard and it toppled on center, upside down. It stayed that way for a long time.

Finally, one day the farmer got a ladder, climbed up to within reaching distance, and pushed the bell out of balance. It swung toward him and before he could dodge it emptied about seven gallons of water in his face. The unexpected frequently happens.

Now is the time to have your furnace looked over and put in good working order. Have the chimney cleaned also, and you will be surprised with the better satisfaction you will have this winter.

"Does your wife pick all your suits for you?" "No, just the pocket-ets."

"What do elephants have that no other animals have?" "Little elephants."

Fire-place wood, just the thing for these cool evenings. We can deliver promptly in any quantities.
