"GOOD OLD DAYS"

The millions who saw, or struggled to see, Lindbergh last week, witnessed the beginning of a new era.

There never were any "good old days." In the "good old days" one hundred and twenty-five years ago wives were expected to die off at forty, and at fifty most men were broken down.

The physical hardships of the "good old days" were only exceeded by their intellectual poverty, banished for the humbleness of us by the modern newspaper, magazine, book, movie, graphophone.

Those who have welcomed Lindbergh have participated in the beginning of a revolution in social and business life comparable with the revolutions introduced first by the railroad and then by the automobile.

PEDDLERS

The United States supreme court lately has ruled that a municipal corporation can not restrict the right of a salesman to solicit business for a firm outside the state because it is an unreasonable restraint upon interstate commerce.

This in effect throws down the bars to the itinerant peddler and the unethical and irresponsible salesman and places upon the people the responsibility for deciding whether they shall be swindled and humbugged.

Practically every city and town of any size has an ordinance requiring that peddlers and others soliciting business at homes shall have a license. This requirement is not for the revenue derived, but to discourage the itinerant for the protection of the people against the sharp practices of the stranger.

The itinerant makes glittering promises and his interests are wholly selfish. As a general thing, he is annoying and refuses to take no for an answer. He expects the prospective customer to believe him, but it is the other way around when the sale is closed.

Contrast this treatment with what the local merchant offers—Goods of standard quality, immediate delivery return privileges, attractive and money-saving prices, a neighborly interest in serving you conscientiously and readiness and willingness to make good on every representation he makes.

Close the door on the irresponsible itinerant salesman and trade with dependable home merchants whose word is their bond.

CHRIST FOR ALL—ALL FOR CHRIST The Word of God

PROCLAMATION OF PEACE:—Glory be to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. Luke 2:14.

PRAYER:—Our loving Father, we thank Thee for: "Peace, perfect peace, our future all unknown? Jesus we know, and He is on the throne. Whence cometh wisdom and unthought-of?"

He (at the dance): "Mary's a girl with plenty of backbone." Haw: "Yes, so I notice."

He: "This ring I offer you is a symbol of the love I bear for you. It has no ending." She: "And it is also a symbol of the love I bear for you. It has no beginning!"

The Lancer

Harry S. Russell

"Will you vote for me this morning?" That's the way it starts. It usually ends with a hand going in to the pocket and something over a dollar coming out.

Barnum was right. There is one born every minute and it is as should be. The average American man enjoys being "sliced." He thrives on it, always calling for more.

And so when he glances up from his work at the question, "Will you vote for me this morning?" if he is real busy the best thing is to subscribe to the first magazine on the list and get it over with.

Possibly there are some of my readers, if any, who haven't heard the query as stated above and it may be best to explain.

This is the season of the year when the "magazine girls" reach Chestertown. Like Chautauqua, Fourth of July and Christmas, they manage somehow to hit the same places at about the same season.

The girls get so much for each subscription they take. And to make it easier for them and harder for you there is a scheme whereby each subscription is a vote and the winner in the voting gets a scholarship to some college. You are therefore urged, by the girls themselves, to help them get an education. Usually you do.

The circulation managers of the different magazines, students of human nature that they are, realize that it is hard for a man to refuse a woman, and doubly so if she has charm, which some of the magazine girls have but most haven't.

If one would stop to think, which one seldom does, one would see that the majority of these girls would be out of place in college. But that line of thought would be no good in escaping from subscribing. And after a summer, or several summers, of such work a girl has no need for a college education. She will know more about men than a dozen of the sweet girl graduates will ever know. And as that is about as far as the average girl wishes her education to extend, she is educated.

After a summer, or several summers, of such work, a girl if she has any real talent at all, should have developed into a fair sort of saleswoman. And as it doesn't take an awfully clever saleswoman to sell herself to a man, most of them should be able to marry and well. And as that is about the height of the average girl's ambition, she is prepared.

The main trouble that the girls have at the start is in being able to tell just what system, or rather dose, should be employed in a certain case. Of course there are some men who like the girls to just reach in and take out their pocketbooks. There are others whom a shy glance will bring into fold. Some can best be sold by a straight business like talk. And some can't be sold at all. These the girls can soon learn to distinguish.

Most of them, lacking the real powers of perception and reason, use the strong arm method exclusively. They no doubt get a great many subscribers but they are not the artists that the ones who prescribe to suit the case. And the strong arm group are not as prepared to go high as are the real artists.

Which all means, if you are in need of a magazine, then you might as well buy from the girls and if you don't need one, yet are sold, rest in the knowledge that there are thousands of others like you, who make the world go around. And even if a college never sees the girl you helped in her education.

England will suffer a total eclipse of the sun on the twenty-ninth of June. We understand that the government is fully prepared to blame it on Soviet Russia.

And surely you have heard the latest story on the Scotchman. 'Tis said that he opened his pocket-book on January 17 and a June Bug fell out.

Claims that are made to heroes are always amusing. When Lindbergh landed in Paris every American town he had passed through or flown over claimed him as a son. Sweden put in a genealogical bid for him and the French tried for days to trace a strain of Gallic blood in his veins. However, the most amusing claim of all is that of Eisleben, where Chamberlain and Levine stopped in search of a filling station. That town's lion hunters doped it out this way: Eisleben was the birthplace of Martin Luther; Luther started the Reformation; the Reformation led the Pilgrims to America; hence Eisleben is to be credited with a share in the flight. That's German efficiency.

Mortgage Sale

NEAR ROCK HALL, KENT CO., MARYLAND

Under and by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in a mortgage from William Bauer and Edith Bauer, his wife, dated May 3rd A. D. 1923, and duly recorded in Liber R. R. A. No. 2, Folio 72, of the Land Records for said Kent County, default having occurred under said mortgage by reason of the failure of the mortgagors to pay the taxes, mortgage debt or interest due under said mortgage, the undersigned as Attorney named in said mortgage to sell the lands and premises therein mentioned upon default thereunder, will sell the lands and premises conveyed by way of said mortgage hereinafter described at Public Sale at Downey's Store located at the Town of Rock Hall in Kent County, Maryland, on Thursday, July 7th

A. D. 1927, at eleven o'clock A. M., all that Farm and premises on which the said William Bauer and wife reside, located on the Easterly side and a short distance from the state road leading into Finney Neck adjoining the lands of Henry Mercer, John Huber and the lands of others and containing twenty nine acres of land more or less. For further description and title of said farm see said mortgage.

This little farm is well set in grapes and other fruits and the land in good life, easily tilled and productive. There is a fine tract of woodland to the property and its proximity to Rock Hall, where there is a good market for wood and timber, make it very valuable. All kinds of vegetables can be readily grown and for which a good market can be found at Rock Hall or by shipping same to Baltimore by the steamers that run daily from Rock Hall. The improvements consist of a comfortable two-story frame dwelling, stable and other outbuildings sufficient for the farm and fencing all in fair condition.

The purchaser will be entitled to the possession of the farm on the final ratification of the sale by the court and all crops growing on said farm on day of sale.

One third of the purchase money cash on the day of sale, the remainder of the purchase money payable in two equal installments in 6 and 12 months from day of sale with interest on all deferred payments from day of sale, and to be secured to the satisfaction of the undersigned; or all cash at the purchaser's option. These terms may be modified if application is made to the undersigned before the day of sale. Title papers at purchaser's expense.

KIBLER'S CORNER

No. 12 Wednesday, June 22 Vol. 1

"What became of that portable garage of yours?" "Oh, I tied the dog to it and a cat came by."

Your heater rusts out in summer more than it wears out in the winter. Lump Lime in the fire box will absorb the moisture and prevent rusting. First clean the heater thoroughly, partly fill the fire box with lime, and then close all openings tightly. From fifty to seventy-five cents worth of lime will do.

Bill wonders why it is, when you get awake in the night and wonder what time it is, that the clock always strikes half past something.

Nearly everybody is buying next winter's coal this summer, there's a reason, its cheapest now. Order yours now at the reduced prices. We've always noticed that the calamity howler never has any blisters on his hands.
