Easton Trims Washington In Poor Exhibition

Carroll Pitched Good Ball—Defeated By Errors

Easton, of the Eastern Shore League, avenged itself for the two defeats handed it last year by the Washington College nine, by handing the college boys a 6 to 2 trimming on Monday.

Jack Carroll on the mound for the Washington team pitched a tough game to lose. Outside of the first inning, when he started off too easily, and allowed four hits which netted two runs the big left hander kept his hits well scattered.

Handelman, who started on the mound for Easton was also a portender. He did not last long when the local nine began to connect. He retired in favor of Stinson when the score was knotted at two each.

The errors, made by the Washington shortstop and second baseman were of the inexcusable variety. Balls hit right at them were muffed in the worst possible manner. They weren't hard hit balls, either.

In the sixth inning with two on base the Easton manager decided it wise to pass Smoot after the big boy had placed one well over the bleachers that was foul by inches.

Easton did not look as good as last year. Carroll had little trouble retiring them after the first session in which he grooved the ball. They lack hitting ability and are not fast in the field.

The two teams will meet again today at Easton. Bennett or Purcell will probably do the honors for the Washington team.

Massey Defeats Greensboro 10 To 2

Massey defeated Greensboro by the score of 10 to 2. After the second inning Lefty Ward pitched a fine game for the visitors, allowing but four scattered hits.

In the second inning 11 Massey batters faced him and four hits coupled with a walk and two errors, netted them seven runs.

Ward hit Lester and Gilbert Newnam in the first and they scored on Moffett's single over third base. A hit and passed ball in the seventh accounted for Massey's other run.

A hit and passed ball in the fifth gave Greensboro their first run, while two errors in the six gave them another. Coleman pitched a fine game for Massey and should have had a shutout. Both hurlers handed 10 men. This was Massey's third win out of four games for the season.

"Gump" Matthews May Run Here

There is a possibility that "Gump" Matthews, Kent County boy, who is a track star at the University of Maryland, will compete in the American Legion meet here on Memorial Day.

"Gump" is considered one of the best college track athletes in the country and has made a wonderful record at Maryland.

SPLASHES IN SPORTS

Umpire George, of the Eastern Shore League, started for Easton, that League, in the first game of a pair of contests between the two teams.

He was the only Class A player on the Easton squad.

Washington College lost to St. Johns last Saturday in a game in which each team would take the lead as it batted.

The Johnnies had last bat and therefore won.

Jack Sharkey outlived Jim Maloney in the heavyweight survival meet last Friday evening.

Jack helped Jim to bed by a slight sleeping potion administered in the fifth round.

The dose was taken on the jaw.

The betting before the bout was pro-Maloney but the opinion of experts was that if Jim didn't win, Jack would.

Each promised to send the other home in a hurry.

Fans who wanted to be neutral contented themselves with yelling hoary for Boston.

Defer Court Rule Limiting Dribble

The recent action of the joint basket ball rules committee, limiting the use of the dribble has been rescinded and the dribble will remain in status quo for the 1927-28 season.

This announcement was made today by John Brown, Jr., a member of the committee, following a mail vote conducted by its chairman, L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State University, among the 20 members of the committee.

The committee adopted the dribble rule, generally recognized as one of the most drastic bits of basket ball legislation in the game's history, on April 9.

Announcement of the rule change was followed by a nation-wide controversy among coaches, players, officials and others interested in the sport.

The rule would have limited the dribble to a single bound whereas the number of bounds previously was unlimited.

Recognizing the difficulty involved in putting the rule into force immediately until its meetings in April 1928 and urged players, coaches, officials and others associated with the game to make a thorough study and investigation in the meantime in order that suggestions might be brought before the meeting year.

"The rules committee believes that limitation of the dribble is a necessary step in the best interests of basket ball," Mr. Brown said. "but it deems it expedient that the proposed change be held off for another year, so that suggestions for the limitation may come at the proper time through the basket ball rules revision committee."

On Saturday St. Johns won over the Eastern Shore crew in a typical college game, a game chock full of errors, misplays and lots of hitting.

The lead sea-sawed between the two teams inning after inning. In this game Purcell made his first appearance on the mound this season and looked good. He relieved Bennett in the sixth with two men on and all the one of the runners scored for the remaining innings he pitched hitless ball.

The batting averages of the Washington nine on the southern jaunt were as follows:

At the same time this was going on, Homer Smith and Red Clough were chasing each other around the ring at Still Pond.

It seems that Clough was the best chaser. Anyhow he got the long end of the purse.

Giraitis, second basemen for Washington College, tried to teach the ball tricks such as running up his shin in the Washington-Easton game.

The ball was evidently an "old dog." Anyhow it refused to be taught the new tricks.

IT IS CALLED A SOLAR PLEXUS, in the realm of the padded punch, not because the recipient thereof sees all the bodies of the solar system gaily flitting about, but because of the section of the body where the "wallop lands.

The Solar Plexus, one of the famous punches of them all—is a clout, says a medical dictionary, "landing in a nervous plexus situated in the abdomen behind the stomach, surrounding the coeliac axis and the root of the superior mesenteric artery. The S. P. continues the dope, "distributes filaments to all abdominal viscera. This couldn't be proved by any prize fighter.

Washington Won One Game In South

Although winning but one game in three starts the Washington College base ball team is well pleased with the results of its four-day trip last week.

The first game scheduled with the Quantico Marines went by the board when adverse weather conditions entered the proceedings.

The second game of the two-game affair with the Devil-Dogs resulted in a 6 to 2 victory for the Quantico nine. The Washington squad played good ball and except for one bad inning played on an equal footing with the soldiers.

On Friday the local collegians performed the bit that made the trip successful. They trimmed Curry Byrd's University of Maryland nine 6 to 5. And they waited until the ninth inning to do it. Coming from behind, with Maryland in the van at 5 to 3, the Kibler coached aggregation punched their way to a triumph.

Clough Wins Over Smith

After battling on even terms until the final round of a scheduled eight-round scramble Homer Smith, Kent County boy, was forced to quit when he injured his arm in the bout with Red Clough of Queen Annes.

The fight was the second go between the pair of scrappers, both bouts being held in Still Pond before a large crowd.

The first scrap was decided a draw by the judges and it is felt that the second affair would have been decided the same way had Smith not quit. When Smith left the ring Clough was automatically returned the victor by a technical knockout.

Lost—466 Carloads of Coal

A COAL COMPANY recently learned that two firms in Milwaukee were in the market for a large tonnage. Instantly it dispatched one of its best men to the Wisconsin city, equipped with favorable prices and terms.

But while their representative sped westward in a fast train, a competitor in Charleston, W. Va., learned of the situation. Immediately he called the two Milwaukee firms by long distance telephone and sold 466 carloads of coal! When the salesman for the first concern arrived the order was lost

The long distance telephone has become the right-hand man of modern business. In tracing shipments, in checking overdue accounts, in building better customer relations, and in direct selling, the magic of voice-to-voice communication is showing direct results on the business balance sheet.
