Loyola Cagers Hand Pentagon Sharp Setback

Outside Shooting Features Jesuit Victory Over Local Five

Washington Led At Half Time

Shooting from all angles and with deadly accuracy, Loyola invaded the domains of Washington College last Saturday evening and carried away all honors by virtue of a 33 to 29 triumph over the Pentagon.

When "shooting from all angles" is mentioned, "shooting from all angles" is meant. Not since the days of Henny Carrington has there been such a display of dead-eye shooting as that staged on last Saturday by Frank Dudley of Loyola. And the elder Carrington would have to have been at his best to even equal Dudley's feat.

At half time Washington was leading 12 to 10. It cannot be said that the Pentagon enjoyed this two-point lead, for they knew they must do better in the second stanza if they expected to win.

Loyola won the contest at the very beginning of the second half when on three shots, they scored three baskets and added a foul before Washington could advance its total above 12. Loyola was never headed. Twice the shotmen pulled up to within two points of the visitors but each time Dudley brought his snap-shooting back into play to enable the Jesuits to get away to a larger lead.

Dudley was the real star of the contest. This little Loyola forward accounted for 17 of his teams points.

I doubt if in the modern history of basketball at Washington College there has been an opposing player to gather that many points against the locals on the home court. Dudley's style of shooting is one that is hard to stop. He shoots as soon as he gets the ball, no matter where he is. He is quick, very quick, in getting the ball away, which makes it all the harder to guard him effectively.

Despite the fact that Loyola played a fine game and deserved to win it was obvious to those who follow the Pentagon closely that the Kibler machine was far from its best. Loyola's defense, which looked so good against the locals on Saturday has never bothered the Pentagon before and it is doubtful if it will again. The Washington team was not cutting for the basket and not following up its shots. This made the visitors defense seem a lot stronger than it actually was.

Washington presented a new lineup to start the game when Captain Carroll went to guard and Dumschott was returned to his first love, a forward position. Jacobs appeared at center. These with Giratis and Cavanaugh made up the Washington five. Seib and Carrington broke into the lineup before the close of the game and looked good.

To many of the Washington fans there is no doubt but when the Washington and Loyola teams meet in Baltimore on February 26 the tables will be turned. Washington always plays its best against the Jesuits in the Monumental city and Loyola always makes its best showing here. Another thing that local fans are considering is the fact that by the time of the second contest Coach Kibler will have his cagers coached to stop Dudley or at least slow him up considerably.

Doubtless it is better to keep silent and be thought a fool than to speak and remove all doubt.

In these days of equality, a man has a perfect right to sue his wife on grounds of non-support.

When you spend money out of town it says, "Farewell Forever." When you spend it at home it says, "Till We Meet Again."

Clothes are supposed to make the man, and by the same rule the absence of them make the woman, according to present fashions.

UP AND DOWN THE FLOOR

Dudley's Shooting Hard To Stop

The style of basket tossing employed by Frank Dudley against Washington College last Saturday evening is a style that is becoming popular and one that is mighty hard to stop. Dudley might be classed as belonging to the snap-shooting species. There are some that claim his title should be sharp-shooter. If Saturday's work is a fair specimen and they say it is, we agree.

By snap-shooting is meant letting the ball fly from any place or position as soon as it hits your hands. This style is not as accurate as the set-shot variety but it enables the player to get more shots and this makes up for the difference in accuracy.

Dudley is in the middle of an exceptional year. Despite the assertion by some that there is no such thing as luck we still believe in the old horseshoe. No man can control the basketball on such long shots and make it hit within several inches. Dudley's shots might have hit the rim; a fraction of an inch between a goal and a miss and no man is that good.

These exceptional years are common. Henny Carrington had one the next to the last year he played for Washington. And the last year Henny had a hard time making a basket a game.

But Dudley and Loyola are following the right system; when a man is shooting them let him shoot.

Poor Officiating In Saturday's Tilt

The officiating in the Washington-Loyola contest last Saturday was very poor. Rumsey, of Philadelphia, who worked the contest was fair and neither side could be said to have been favored. At the same time his work was of a rather low calibre. He officiated in the style of 1920. He was too quick with the whistle and too slow on the jump. The modern game of basketball allows a mite more tussling for the ball than was the custom several years ago. Mr. Rumsey had evidently failed to bring his game up-to-date. He tooted on his whistle for a held ball if two players on opposing sides looked at each other. And then when he had it a held ball he consumed very valuable time in tossing the ball into play. His work tended to make the whole game of the sloppy variety. Another fault to be found with Mr. Rumsey was that he was not consistent. A foul one time was overlooked at another.

So there you are Mr. Rumsey. We are not talking behind your back and we freely admit that it is entirely possible that you weren't at your best. The best have an off night now and then and we are giving you the benefit of the doubt.

Here's One For The Book

Terryville, Conn., is an endeavor to keep out in front in the Sports World is going to introduce a new one to the basketball world early in February. The manager of the Terryville Auditorium, where all sports contests are staged, if after two pro teams from Danbury and Bridgeport for a game. However, to make the sport different and to introduce a little novelty, both teams will play the game on roller skates. This indeed will be a novelty. A great FLOOR game should result.

Mumps Hits Middies' Team

An epidemic of mumps—sweeping the ranks of the Naval Academy last night—had sent more than a score of Midshipmen to the Naval Hospital, invaded the ranks of varsity and reserve basketball teams and threatened disruption of the squad in the face of two big games.

Two members of the squad are in the hospital and two others are under observation. The latter two, Capt. Tom Hamilton and "Whitey" Lloyd, center, are three-letter men. The men in the hospital are Allen Shapley of San Francisco, guard, also a football and track man, and John Bernet of St. Louis. They are both on the reserve team.

The disease struck down the basketball men just as the squad was being whipped into shape to meet Fordham Wednesday and New York University Saturday. Wakening of the reserve squad which compared favorably with the regulars, leaves Coach Wilson in a serious predicament at the eleventh hour.

Every precaution is being taken by officials to check further spread of the disease. Despite the early efforts of physicians, about twenty men, other than the basketball stars, contracted the disease and were sent to the hospital for treatment.

Court Game More Popular Than Ever

Kent County Now Boasts Numerous Teams

Last night as a preliminary to the Washington-Albright basketball game, St. James Church and The Rotary Club Athletic fives met. On Saturday evening the Rock Hall five will meet the boys from St. James. All of which is merely further proof that the game of basketball is spreading throughout the county.

There is no accurate figures as to how many teams are playing the court game. To arrive at a total would require a lot of guess work. We won't attempt to guess. However there are by far more basketball teams than there are baseball nines. Every college, prep school, high school, athletic club, Y. M. C. A., K. of C., Y. M. H. A. has a team. There is a professional league known as the America League, other pro leagues and pro teams, as well as numerous semi-pro and industrial loops.

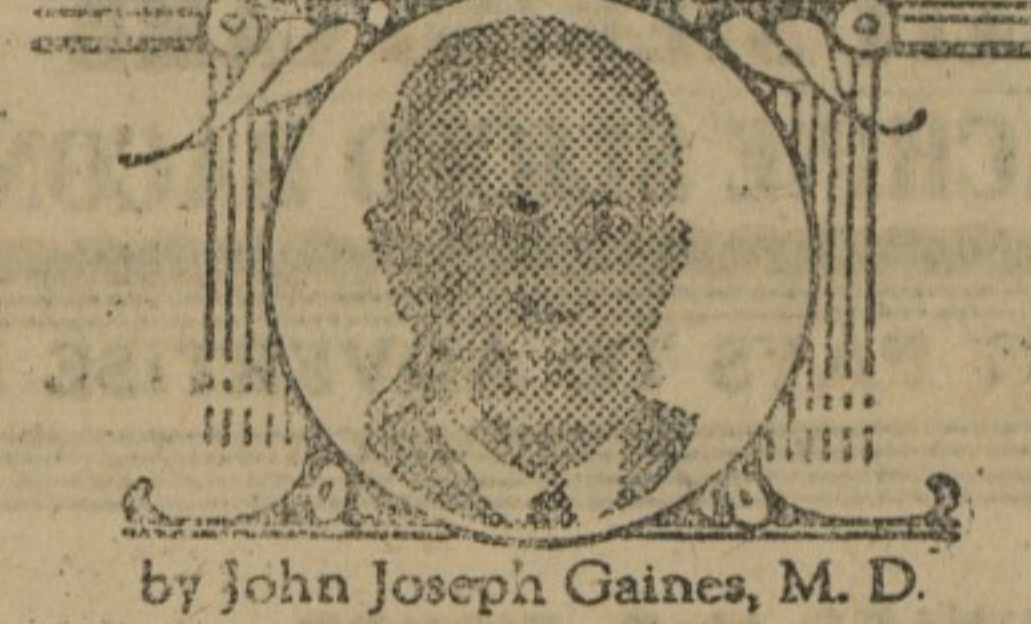

The game is one that is ideal for the winter months in that it can be played indoors. The one big problem facing basketball authorities everywhere, is how to accommodate the large crowds that wish to attend the games.

Some men tell their wives the truth when they get home late at night, so there will be no chance of them knowing where they've been.

Most offices are places where a man tries to make a living after being nice to those who don't.

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Gaines, M.D.

COLDS.

Colds are not "simple ailments." Here are some things to be remembered:
 (1) All colds are infectious—contagious.
 (2) The careless "sneezer" must be shunned carefully.
 (3) Colds are the result of germ invasion.
 (4) They are invariably carried from person to person.
 (5) They are not caused by exposure to cold, or by changes in the weather.

The latter statement may be doubted; but the fact remains that, prolonged exposure to cold and wet, weakens the resistance of the body, and permits the germs to multiply rapidly; we may carry germs for years, that never develop sufficiently to make us sick, because our resistance is capable of holding them in check. Then comes prolonged effort, or exposure, and the enemy asserts itself.

Colds are unlikely, if the body is in first-class condition. Good, wholesome, nutritious food is a preventive, if properly taken. Ample, comfortable clothing, plenty of rest and sleep and a tranquil state of mind, will keep colds in the background.

If you have a cold, correct the bowels and kidneys, and stay indoors till well; you have no right to appear at gatherings, snort, sneeze and cough—to infect others. To sneeze in the general direction of everybody is a crime committed only by the very ignorant. Hot lemonades, teas and foot-baths are old remedies, but very useful. Surface circulation must be maintained and the cold skin brought back to normal.
