Hair Bleaching A Dangerous Practice

Dear Miss Flo:

Please tell me what to do to keep my hair from getting darker. It is bobbed, naturally curly, and somewhat oily. I have been using lemon after a shampoo, but it does not keep my hair light. . . . says I should have my hair bleached, as I have a naturally fair complexion. Please tell me of something harmless that I can use indefinitely without danger.

In my opinion, when blonde hair begins to grow dark, the wisest thing to do is to let nature take its course, because it looks 100 per cent better when it is dark than when it is bleached, and there isn't a woman in the world who deceives one but her self about the true color of her hair.

It is a fact that we use cosmetics quite obviously, and we have grown so accustomed to pink cheeks and ruby lips that a face without make-up looks washed out and faded. But while a touch of rouge and lipstick gives freshness to even a mature face, dyed hair has quite a different effect. It hardens and coarsens the face, makes every line deeper, and every blemish more prominent.

I know of no bleach that will not dry and kill the hair if used constantly. Of course, preserving the natural color of the hair is quite different from bleaching it. Sometimes an egg shampoo is very good for keeping hair light. Four eggs beaten up are used in place of soap for cleansing and lathering.

The lemon rinse, while recommended usually as a preservative of the light tints, is not as satisfactory, as a rule, as it is claimed to be.

Camomile tea is excellent for retaining the natural color of the hair and can be used with perfect safety. Take about three tablespoonful of the tea leaves—which you can purchase at any drug store for about fifteen cents—and steep them in a pint of water to which is added a little borax. Strain and use this as a rinse after the hair is thoroughly washed and free of soap.

A few drops of peroxide may be used instead of borax. It is added after the tea leaves have been strained. The drying effect of the peroxide is offset by the camomile.

As a matter of face, if the hair is smartly done its tint doesn't matter a bit so long as it's natural and the hair is beautifully groomed.

Dr. Frank Crane Says

Do Not Be Ashamed of Worthy Ambition

In Abraham Lincoln's first political speech, he said to the voters of Sangamon County:

"Every man is said to have his particular ambition. Whether this be true or not, I can say, for one, that I have no other so great as that of being truly esteemed by my fellowmen, by rendering myself worthy of their esteem."

That was Lincoln's early ambition and one which subsequent events indicate he kept throughout his life. Contrast with that Napoleon's professed life ambition:

"I propose to make the Mediterranean a French lake!"

In the two the whole life story of each is contained—their achievements and their places in the mind of posterity.

What is your ambition?

If you didn't have to tell anyone, but just by wishing after you have gone to bed make it come true, what one thing would you like to do most?

Would it be to make one hundred thousand dollars, put it into safe bonds, and have an income assured that would enable you to be protected from want the rest of your life?

Would it be to be elected to a high office, to write a "best seller," or get in the movies, or what?

Would it be to have something, to do something, or to be something?

Just what is your particular ambition?

There are two things to remember about ambition.

Ambition of the right sort is one of the most valuable characteristics of a worthwhile man. It is nothing to be ashamed of.

The ready idea was put into words by one of the true gentlemen of the world, Sir Philip Sidney, who, in an age of hypocrisy wore the ideals of chivalry in his heart.

"To be ambitious of true honor, of the true glory and perfection of our natures, is the very principal and incentive of virtue; but to be ambitious of titles, place, of ceremonial respects and civil pageantry, is as vain and little as the things are which we court."

A Tire Chain that protects your Tires

The Goodyear Rubber Non-Skid Chain PROTECTS YOUR TIRES as well as you and your car.

The flat cross links of rubber fit the tire snugly and prevent a great deal of the wear that tread and sidewalls normally get—especially curb and rut wear. Being of rubber the links cannot dig into your tire.

This Goodyear Chain wears far longer than ordinary chains and gives maximum protection against dangerous side-skid because of its unique construction.

Come in and let us quote you on your size.
