Learn From Lindbergh

The thoughtful young men today who consistently save a part of their regular earnings have had a new inspiration in the achievements and glory of their fellow countryman, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, America's intrepid airman. They know the one factor which made all possible was the fact that he had $2,000 of his money to invest in the venture. Colonel Lindbergh was the largest single contributor to the venture throwing in all his savings—money he had deposited regularly from his earnings as an air-mail pilot. Colonel Lindbergh no doubt would today be an unknown air-mail pilot-IF he had had no SAVINGS. Does this teach a lesson?
