Donald Symington, president of the Baltimore Trust Co., who was appointed chairman of the Baltimore Association of Commerce committee to investigate the proposed Chesapeake Bay Bridge, will also be named a member of Governor Ritchie's bridge committee, it was indicated. It is held probable two bodies will work in conjunction, although an announcement at the meeting of the Association of Commerce last week said that the matter had not been decided yet. Both committees will study the possibilities of construction of the bridge by state financing or private capital.

The importance of examination of pre-school and school age children is forcibly brought out by the fact that out of nearly 7,000 children examined 10 W throughout the State only 1,476 were found to be free from gross defects. tion of 17,000, 343 pre-school children were examined. Only one county in the State (Harford) had their pre-school conferences in a larger number of places than did Kent. Another interesting comparison is that between Kent with its population of 17,000 having very nearly as many children examined as had Washington County with its population of average salary was $1,184. 90,000.
