

YOUR SPORTS AND MINE

by H. S. Are

A LESSON in lacrosse is on the program for the Washington College stickmen for Saturday afternoon in Baltimore. At that time the locals will meet the Mount Washington twelve which, to date, has shown about as much strength in the old Indian sport as any team in the country. The Mount Washington twelve could run up a great score on Washington if it so desires. But the Baltimoreans will hardly do that. They are interested in developing lacrosse as well as in playing it and if they follow the procedure of last season in the game with Washington they will teach the local lads a plenty. Last year the Washington lacrosse men learned more in the game with Mount Washington than in any tilt of the season. The Mounts explained the whys and wherefores of the game, and despite their defeat the Washington boys enjoyed the afternoon.

A BASEBALL team without a schedule is something like a man without a country. But the Chestertown High team is just that. Manager Stenger has assembled what is expected to be a nifty little nine at the local school if it ever has the chance to demonstrate its ability. But, as yet, no games have been arranged for the team. The heads of the county high schools have not gotten together to make out the card for the county league series and this in turn has kept the management of the Chestertown team from scheduling games with out-of-county nines. The end of the season approaches and the team without a schedule continues to practice daily. It seems that the county school authorities should look into the county schedule, at least.

UNCERTAINTY IS the thing that makes sport sport. And there has certainly been a lot of uncertainty in the baseball in the big leagues thus far this season. The Athletics, World Champions, got away to a fine start and then were smothered by the Washington Senators. Incidentally these same Senators looked to be the best team in the American League at the close of the last campaign. Had they not suffered so horribly at the hands of Philadelphia in the early part of the season they would have come mighty close to copping the pennant that went to the Pennsylvania city. And speaking of the A's Jimmy Foxx seems to have lost his batting eye and Lefty Grove his smoke. Fans who wish well for the Philadelphians had better offer up a little prayer that these much needed essentials have not permanently departed. Brooklyn is playing good ball and yet not winning. Their opponents seem to put forth super efforts when playing the Robins and the Robins are having a tough time getting a win in line. Jake Flowers has been pounding the ball to a fare-thee-well and was well up toward the front in the league batting standings.

THE WASHINGTON College nine added another to its list of baseball victories last Saturday. But a bad scare was thrown in to make the game more exciting. Griffin pitched a good game. The absence of Burk, which necessitated a shift in the infield lineup, caused a little trouble. A couple of errors paved the way for a four run rally by the opposition which almost spelled defeat for Washington. The Kibler nine, however, once more showed an ability to hit the ball in a pinch and may be able to give a good account of itself in the big four game tour that begins in a week or so.

WHAT IS the matter with the Washington College lacrosse team? That is the question one hears here and there and hears often. In its second season, and with a veteran combination, the Washington stickmen do not look as good as they did last year, the first in the sport. The thing that is lacking seems to be the old zip and fight. The reason for this lack is not so apparent. Perhaps the team misses such war horses as Marth and Wilson, who despite their lack of finish in the stick part of the game, were ever ready to smash in and upset a visiting assault on the goal.

Perhaps some of the novelty of the thing has worn off. Last season the game was new and the players went at it with the same spirit that a child approaches a new toy. This season the game is just so much more work. One thing is certain—Washington College is not large enough to support baseball and lacrosse and put winning teams on the field in each. At present it is lacrosse that suffers. Most of the college's natural athletes are on the diamond squad. In future years it may be the nine that will feel the division. But ever it will be one or the other.

GOLF MAY be said to be officially underway for the season when the qualifying round for the club team and handicaps is held next week end at the Chester River Yacht and Country Club course. Then the first tournament of the season will be held. Competition will be on in earnest. So early in the season as now it is apparent that there is an increasing interest in the game. Several of the county notables have been bitten by the bug and assail old man par with regularity.

Randolph-Macon Beats Washington

Virginians Win By 5 To 0 Score

The Washington College lacrosse team failed in one of its two chances to break into the win column this season when losing 5 to 0 last Saturday to the stickmen from Randolph-Macon. Inability to cope with the attack offered by the visitors in the first few minutes of play placed the locals in the hole from the very start. Beatty's charges fell short in aggressiveness during the first thirty minutes of the encounter, and Randolph-Macon tallied the five goals which were the final margin of victory. The second half of the contest was scoreless and the greater part of this period saw the ball being played by the Washington attack. The locals could not master enough to get the ball past goalie Almond of the visitors and were forced to take a goose egg for the third time this season.

The defensive play of Beatty's twelve left little to be desired in the second half. It was in the first period that the defense faltered and in that period the game was lost. Burdette and Orem played well on the attack for Washington while Phillips, Hope and Stewart were outstanding in defensive play. Tomlinson, who replaced Bringhurst at cover point, put up a nice exhibition for an inexperienced player and shows possibility.

The Washington suckmen face the Mount Washington twelve in Baltimore on Saturday in what should be an easy victory for the Baltimoreans. The locals, however, are looking forward to a lesson.

According to a recent survey, a majority of the emergency calls for help on the road at this time of the year result from the fact that motorists have failed to have their cars properly adjusted for winter driving.

MARINE CAPTAIN

When the Washington College nine meets the diamond combination of the U. S. Marines in a two-game series on May 16 and 17 they will face in Eddie Gorman, the captain of the Leatherneck nine, an outfielder of real ability. He has batted over .350 for the past two seasons as a member of the sea soldier team.

Washington Nine Scores Third Win

Penn Teachers Victims Of Locals

By a margin of one run the Washington College baseball team kept its 1930 record intact last Saturday. The Kibler nine triumphed over the West Chester Teacher's College 5 to 4.

Griffin hurled a fine game for Washington but his error and one by Fitzgerald, who played shortstop in the absence of Burk, paved the way for the four run rally by the Pennsylvania teachers that put the Washington nine in hot water.

Because of the absence of Burk Kibler found it necessary to shift his infield considerably. Fitzgerald was sent to short and Dopson brought in from center field to cover first base. Robinson got the mid field assignment.

The slugging of Alexander, who garnered a single and a triple, and the timely hitting of Crisley, were high spots in the game for the Shoremen. Kibler is preparing his charges this week for a tilt with Moravian College on the local field Friday afternoon. This is a contest that was added after the local's schedule was officially announced.

On May 7 the West Chester Teachers will return the engagement of last Saturday and appear on the local field.

Oxford-Cambridge Team Completes Lacrosse Tour

Last week the Oxford-Cambridge lacrosse team, which so soundly thrashed Washington in the opening game of the season here, completed its American tour by winning its last three games against Dartmouth, Harvard and Brown. The English record is twelve games one against two losses and one tie. They outscored their American opponents 113 goals to 85, a most remarkable record, entitling them to take back the Flannery International Lacrosse Trophy. The members of the Oxford-Cambridge team exhibited throughout the tour a sportsmanship of the finest calibre.

P. E. Titsworth Offers Figures

Submits Data To Del-Mar-Va Board

At a meeting held at headquarters of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association, Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, Chairman of a Special Committee on the Proposed Chesapeake Bay Bridge, submitted facts and figures upon which the Association's attitude on this project may be ultimately based.

Dr. Titsworth's statements include estimates of cost with approximate tax burden should the bridge be constructed by the State of Maryland; distance between Baltimore and Eastern Shore communities if the span should be built at the proposed location; and a comparative table showing distances were the location changed to any one of several other points listed.

The committee discussed the various phases of the situation in detail. It was decided that the facts offered will not be made public until they have been checked and a comparative report compiled from other sources be prepared by the Executive Secretary of the Association. At that time another meeting of the committee will be held when indications are they will prepare a recommendation on the issue to submit to the Annual Membership Meeting, which will be held May 16th.

Those attending the committee meeting Wednesday were: Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, Chairman, Chestertown, Md.; W. D. Corrdry, Snow Hill, Md.; Milford Nathan, Cambridge, Md.; Fred P. Adkins, Salisbury, Md.; Marion deK. Smith, Jr., Chestertown, Md.; and Edwin C. Totten, Secretary.

CANNERY DISPUTES

ANNAPOLIS.—Alleged unsanitary conditions in canning factories in the state, particularly those on the Eastern Shore, were taken under consideration by Governor Ritchie. The governor held a hearing Friday of an informal nature another session will be held in Baltimore sometime within the next few days.

Two state senators, Nelson Fooks of Caroline county and Earle W. Withgot, of Talbot county, owners of canning factories on the Eastern Shore, were among those who appeared before the governor. Others who appeared were Dr. Thomas B. Symons, head of the University of Maryland extension service and Miss Lavinia Engle, secretary of the Maryland League of Women Voters. The investigation by the executive was started after comment on the alleged sanitary conditions at a recent meeting of the Tri-State Cannery Association in Baltimore.
