Preparations for the coming oyster season by our tongers and buyers are about complete and the majority of the cheap. oystermen are calmly waiting the onslaught to begin next Thursday. The tonging fleet will be largely in excess of any former season, but the outlook for a prosperous season is very discouraging; the financial depression, "the gold-bug" manufacturers shuting down their plants throughout the country, thus throwing out of employment, many thousands of laborers, the excitement incident to the presidential canvass, the fruit and vegetable industry that will run well through September, are all detrimental to the oyster trade. It is reported that oysters have become so abundant on Wickes' Beach that tongers will be compelled to return to the use of the old hawk claw tongs in ted Col. and Mrs. T. B.
