> HE ball started to roll at 9 o'clock. In came Captain Jake DeCorse and he kept following me around the store and saying, "Hurry up, I want you," and I did so; I saw what the Captain had in his hand. Says he, "I want to pay you for 400 Boxes Peanuts." He got up three nights to sell them. We got plenty, come and ask for a box. Five cents per box.

Next, in came a Mr. Cochran, a farmer from the First District: "Is this Smith's Cash Store?" Oh, yes. "Well, I want about 100 pounds that 6c. meat." All right, sir, anything else? "No." But say, why not take a 22 pound package of Granulated Sugar for $1. He was surprised, and says at once, "Do you know what I have been paying for sugar?" Says Smith, No, I do not know, and don't want to know, but I do know I'm here for business in this store and in no other merchant's store. That settled it, and you ought to have seen that good Broad Neck smile, and Smith caught it, and it inspired me. Furthermore, Mr. Cochran, I will put up 5 pounds of Best Coffee for $1.00. "Let it come."

Next. Here, Mr. Mack, please help me out, take that gentleman from Rock Hall. But there's two. All right, I'll take Mr. Wheat. Sharp Old Wheaty. "Say, hand me out 2 pounds of that 24c. Chocolate." Here goes, 48 cents, O. K., Wheaty. Say, all fixed for Christmas? and went out smiling.

Ray Bowers gets on to it. "Here, fill up my oil can." Johnny put in 3 gallons. "How much?" Thirty cents. "There," says Ray, "6 cents on 30 saved, 19 per cent. on one
