The old adage has abundant verification in the case of United States Senator Gorman, if it be possible. "His career of leadership in Baltimore, the state," writes an old Democrat, Washington, = 521 Eleventh St., N. W. "must now, in the light of events, be regarded with pride, barring, of course, the coterie of personal persecutors, itching for revenge for some fancied per-

and personal ambitions. "He is native to the manor born, and his brilliant records reflects credit to the state which he represents. Mr. Gorman is dear to the hearts of the vast majority of Democrats, present or absent, and at the present crisis, when the party which We pay interest at the rate of 3 per cent. he has been so long identified with is per annum on deposits left for 4 months or seeking to get into the open, and cross swords with the dominant party. Men who were supposed to be inimical to the senior senator are now openly saying that, if success is to be attained, any hope of wrestling from the Republican party the laurel wreath of victory. Gorman has been induced, through illhealth, to rest from his labors for a time. The others want him anyhow, sick or well, because they believe he is of the wilderness. Mr. Gorman is regarded by them all as the ally and leader of a party in whom hope lies dormant. With this end in view, there is under Whooping Cough, La Grippe, discussion a proposition to insist upon Mr. Gorman getting into the political saddle, and riding ahead of the Democratic forces. It is argued that no man is so thoroughly conversant with the Lumbago, Rheumatism, Piles, needs of the hour as Mr. Gorman; that no man is so well posted on the conditions existing in the State; who knows other party; who can manage an agthings which are necessary to bring to power and control the party now standing at the outer gates.
