DOES FARMING PAY?

One Farm in Kent that Paid for Itself Twice in Seventeen Years!

We often hear the remark that business, in many cases it does not. 1. HEALTHFULNESS. But we venture the assertion that no other business as a rule is more lucrative than farming, How many farmers fail to make a living for their families? Very few, we think, count this up. Is not this about all that most occupations will do? But there are numerous farms in Kent county-even with the 2. SAFE AND REFINED from its fertile fields. It is true Mr. Brown is an exceptionally good farmer and his fruit yields have been especial- 3. MODERN METHODS AND ly helpful. There may be other farms in Kent just as prolific but this one comes to notice at this time and we mention it as a creditable thing to the farming fraternity. Why should not our Kent and Queen Anne's and Cecil farmers engage more extensively in poultry raising? Eggs maintain a high price always at 25c. per dozen, they would certainly yield a big profit—while
