

10. Ibid., p. 230
11. Having lived in Annapolis for twenty years, according to Mrs. Magee.
12. St. Paul's P.E. Church Register III, p. 20. There is nothing else known of Clark's life. In the Guildhall Library, London, I found this item which may refer to him. "Joseph Clarke, son of Joseph Clarke of Braintree in the county of Essex, apprenticed to Jack S. Ding, Citizen and Joiner of London for seven years." December 1, 1742
13. Council Proceedings, 1793-1799, p. 39.
14. It is said that with the exception of the Council Chamber, the State House was unfurnished at the time of the meeting of the Continental Congress and furniture was borrowed from neighbors and other Annapolitans for this session.
15. John Shaw was paid December 7, 1788 for finishing the privy house. Treasurer of the Western Shore, Ledger E.
16. Maj. General Joseph Warren killed at Bunker Hill, General Richard Montgomery killed at the Battle of Quebec. Paid George Smith, June 29, 1799, 30 shillings, Auditor's Journal, Maryland Historical Society, Scharf Collection.
17. Senate Journal, November, 1796, p. 57.
18. In the course of building the State House, two buildings on State Circle were demolished. The conference chamber or Armory, built in 1718, on the north side of the State House, was torn down by Shaw by order of the Assembly in December 1796 (paid Shaw 2 pounds for 8 days labor tearing down the old Armory, Scharf Papers, Maryland Historical Society), King William School, which stood at the south side of the State House was sold at public auction and removed before the "first day of November 1794." (Maryland Gazette, August 13, 1794).
19. In 1799 the Senate ordered that the leak in the roof be repaired. Journal-of-the Senate, 1799, p. 45.