At w. night the woman Rivers and himself Will entered a room alone, with a lighted FLE candle, and locked the door against Co.3 intrusion. A trunk previously pro- HEN vided was then opened, and the in- and cantation commenced. The process was carried on by the woman at first, who tied the money up in a coarse cert light handkerchief and untied it sev- Foo eral times, meanwhile turning about seve with quick motions, and constantly a nu muttering unintelligible gibberish. wou When this farcial performance was last ended, she and Ferris knelt while she he blasphemously offered a prayer, ad- Wh dressed in all mock solemnity to the frie

Giver of all. The bundle she had apparently commade of the money was then in due dua form deposited in the trunk, which wit was locked and she retained the key. cur Together they then left the room, she having previously impressed him che with a belief that the deposit just the made in the trunk should rest there undisturbed by mortal hands for ten days, at the expiration of which time if he had unalterably adhered to her instructions, he would find the coveted $100,000 on opening the trunk. At the end of the third day of their 's stay there, the gipsy family departed, the key of the trunk being taken with them. After the woman had gone, it seems that Ferris grew suspicious that perhaps all was not right in the transaction; but he nevertheless overcame his doubts, and await- be ed with all the patience he could ass summon for the arrival of the time Es when he could see himself whether wi he had been duped or not. He kept be the matter to himself for the remainder of the ten days, and then the trunk was forced open. There lay within it the identical parcel he had E seen put there by the woman Rivers. A slight action of "all right" touched his feeling, and he hastened to open the covering, and lo! there were not the $100,000, nor the $3,000, but la trash equal in bulk to the money he cr had entrusted to the hands of the sa

Telegraph, of the 31st " ult., says that Aaron Irely, a young pi man who had recently been pardon-D ed out of the penitentiary, where he h had been serving a term for horse stealing, went on Wednesday last into a rolling mill in Centre county, and placed his arms between the blades of the large iron shears, which severed both instantly below the el-te bows. The only reason he assigned C for the act was that "his hands had to been the means of sending him to the penitentiary, and he was resolv-a ed they should not get him into trou-t ble again." The stumps were then amputated by a surgeon, and he appeared likely to recover.
