

IAL AGENT. TONIC STIMULigned for the use of the Family, having Gins," 'Aromatic,' "Schnapps," etc., the prominent phymedicinal qualities belong to an old in quart bottles and VGER & CO., Sole Proprietors, Broad Street, N. Y.

riculturist. , and Household. NG, RELIABLE, I, devoted to the difl Culture—such as orchard and garden an interesting an inhildren and Youth. ations every month. , or more, illustraeach volume.

y year. utors are all practi-GRICULTURISTS Territory, but are ections of the coun-NT. for the whole ION is published of the English, and ng matter, and ils Y IN ADVANCE.

, practical, instrucear 80 cents each. rates: Postage to I, France, or Ger-United States and the subscriber, and d in advance at the I'm weary-my career is run; paid for whenever mptly discontinued is ordered expires. er communications Editor and Proprie-ANGE JUDD, w, New York City WHISKERS?

WHISKERS? STACHE A MUSTACHE? HAM'S

yles of nd American

meres,

DS

"Resistance to Tyrants is Obedience to God."

Volume 16.

CAMBRIDGE, MD., WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 20, 1861.

Number 52.

[From the New York Mercury.] ASPIRATION. Art, could afford. BY ATTILA. Alone, with youthful face, and aye

With aspirations strong To write my name on history's page, And live in poet's song, I'll seek the field, where genius, art In their Elysian dwell, And clasp each fancy to my heart, Ere time shall break the spell.

If I could mold in classic form, and Flowers; trees, A head in common clay Lawn or Yard; care That few could ever look upon, And tearless turn away; Ah! then I'd want the neck and arm Fashioned so near divine; The hand—a tiny, taper hand— To touch and call it mine.

> So lifeless seem, the whole, I could not bear to see and meet Perfection without soul! Bring me the chisel and the stone-Ay, lend some magic charm-That I may carve proud fame upon-Make rigid marble warm. Look! see the tresses, one by one, Fall on those shoulders bare-

Alas! when done, 'twere incomplete,

Each ringlet folds so ft in its arm My hidden future there; I have it now in perfect form, Each feature—all I ask; "Tis rest-'tis food to gaze upon The sculptor's finished task!

Ah! what is fame to me? The truest life is scarce begun While floating on earth's sea; My eyes grow dim, but still a light Falls on some form divine; Ay, 'tis a spirit pure and bright, Father, I come-'tis thine!

[From the New York Mercury.] THE BITTER END.

BY GEORGE ARNOLD. Parting, according to Shakspeare, plored her to obey her father. The Our fate is in your hands. In twen-unknown to her.

, and is warranted idea of heaven is a place where one had given her birth.

the dreamy tinkle of sheep-bells on ties, moving about with a noiseless house by according to tell his rean examination of the further shore, and the sharp whisstep and a thoughtful face, like one quests, acquiescing in all his decinot much visited by travelers, is a ative tancy, with such terrible temarecruiting station in one of the far found the newest, low grain-fields near by.

But to Herbert, as be

How he hated that world! Why cess to inquire very closely into its doned the expression—and more oru. fourth, opportunities of great ad-should the cup be dashed from him, means and progress. just as he most longed to quaff its Dibsley was a man of the world. It is with a sentiment of unalloyed to recall. ECUTEI It seemed too hard to bear!

nectar? Why should be be forced to At thirty, he was stoutish, bluff-horror that I write the truth con mannered, red-faced, coarse-featured cerning the occurrences of this undianer jist like mesilf." said the Irsh-fall and the I It seemed too hard to bear! There was an air of strength over without attempting any detail that Poddy my darlint?" aWhy Herbert Grayne was an artist. He and determination about him—in of a subject so fearfully repulsive. 1 that Paddy, my darlint?"—"Why that secret heaviness and vain sor-

had loved all forms of beauty from his stocky, close-knit frame; his short cannot conceive how any being, when he whistles he calls for his childhood, and had longed only thick neck; his coarse, black hair, who labor under no real affliction.—
They tell us that the more they function about him—in of a subject so tearnily repulsive. I that secret heaviness and vain sor it makes them calm and complacent.

They tell us that the more they function about him—in of a subject so tearnily repulsive. I that secret heaviness and vain sor it makes them calm and complacent.

They tell us that the more they function about him—in of a subject so tearnily repulsive. I that secret heaviness and vain sor it makes them calm and complacent.

They tell us that the more they function about him—in of a subject so tearnily repulsive. I that secret heaviness and vain sor it makes them calm and complacent.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they function about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they about his round compact.

They are the about his long to the about his round compact.

They are the about his round compact.

They are the about his round compact.

They are the about his round compact.

They tell us that the more they are the about his round compact.

They are the

gent man, had encouraged this long gestures and motions. His eyes, such things are horribly common—itable business. The more you catch ness, and is a treasury even in hours bathing like a confined criminal? ing, and given his son such education however, were light colored and that many men who are generally it the more it escapes from you. | of severe and multiplied trials, like Because he is sea cured, (secured) as our country, yet in the infancy of heavy-lidden, and his mouth loose respected by the world (whom I, and large, betraying a fatal weak- perhaps, unwittingly respect!), are "Cheerful looks makes every dash with hope at the bottom, and so are As the young man progressed, he ness somewhere.

learned the difficulties of the path he This vulgar and narrow souled unpardonable vulgarity-I know on shine of the soul, and the pleasing promotes virtue, reproves vice, and had chosen; but with that knowledge man, whose heart beat only to the ly too well; but my mind refuses to influence is not confined to self, but improves temper. Properly apprecame a new incentive for victory. - music of dollars and cents, was al-recognize or take in the full force of it diffuses happy light and general ciated it will be recognized as a por-He met Jeanie Hathton, and almost most unnoticed by Jeanie, at first. the idea. That any being calling warmth to the domestic and social tion of the "divinity that stirs withfrom the first, love assumed the guid- She thought nothing about men, himself a man, should lose all sense circles. It is a true and inward joy, in us." ance of their hearts, bound together now, and hardly raised her eyes of his own manhood, honor, and an agreeable and sober emotion by the chain stronger than steel, when her father introduced her to faith, and lay his hand—the hand which while it banishes melancholy brighter than gold, fairer than a gar- Mr. Dibsley. But he noticed her, given him that he may sustain, caress, is readily distinguished from mirth, and the small spark of appreciation and protect-in violence upon the that oft, like lightning, breaks The death of Herbert's father that lingered among the ashes and most delicate, the fairest through the gloom, dazzles for a med two white headstones, inscribed her at all. wondrous galleries of the Old World. drive her into a marriage she had In the midst of all this, Herbert tions of the human family. But, in the meantime, a shadow not dreamed of—a marriage which Grayne returned.

of the old Puritanic cast, and had py hope of her life, as a sacrificed help it. He had heard of the marched the prejudices of genera- on the altar of duty. Why could riage, and flattered himself that, his clear, his judgement undisturbed by fruits of this change in Northern tions against every man who did not they not let her live and die in fate being settled-his agony over-ungenerous, suspicious, or bigoted in tollow some beaten track—some espeace? Calm had come to her after he could be calm. His property, too, prejudices. He looks at the world sentiment will not be immediately tablished routine, in the acquirement long sorrow and many tears. Why needed looking after; he had many with a hopeful, if not, with a laugh of fortune. To them, the word "pain-should it be broken by this hideous warm friends in the village, whom ing eye, sees chiefly the bright side ter" was a synonym for profligacy, interruption?

father, lowering his heavy gray brows one reply. ther see her in her coffin!"

delicious afternoon in October, fully in his brain, to travel his weary way beautiful growth of beautiful growth of bore out my opinion on this subject. The window was suddenly opened at all hazards, while they are at the sad forebodings. to spring up in place without consolation. They were the sale of an occasional picture, endering how much of a fee he should fle—a muttered oath—a sharp report, the Union and above all to the Conwith of new hair. Young, well mated, and in the very abled the young man to exist very receive, until he had said, "Amen." and Dibsley fell, shot through the ly admired, infers an acquiescence in the Union by which alone the Union that strange arbitrator of all our distract his mind from himself—to but then, so had other brides fainted are stunned by the blow, had sire to disperse, so far as in our pow- a great change is working in the popular mind or the North, and that escape the terrible egotism of a broken heart—he labored incessantly. and the church was not well warmof the pistol restored her to consciousness.

Jeame, standed by the escape the terrible egotism of a broa wedding is a trying ceremony, fallen upon a sofa; but the explosion er lies, additional happiness to all popular mind or the North, and that our differences may after awhile sciousness.

The sun slanted his long beams of He formed very few friendships, and ed.

so, to whom all orwhere the flaming foliage glowed ry hour to study, and was known gathered about the poor girl's heart

We are not only happy, if good hustatesmen rather than by insane fanatics. Heaven grant that the rule The sun slanted his long beams of He formed very few friendships, and ed.

Druggists, &c.,

Druggists, &c.,

South wind sighed among the change ved to give to the eves of the Mater plaything; and as such, to abide by hands, were the only response; and an imaginary future, with alarm. Street, New York. South wind sighed among the change ved to give to the eyes of the Mater plaything; and as such, to abide by hands, were the only response; and an imaginary future, with alarm.— men to appeare the ravings of an ing leaves, bringing cheerful sounds Dolorosa. She ceased to enjoy the his judgement even in the most tri- when she looked about her, she was They look forward to their coming abolition mob.—Baltimore South No-OODS. of song and laughter from the black society of those around her, and pas fling matters. She tried as hard as alone with the dead. barges upon the river, mingled with sed her time in quiet household du-she could to preserve peace in the * * * * iladelphia and suit- each other in the stubble of the yel- whom the world had kindly forgot prised her with his opposition, not ures of the Mater Dolorosa. The in gloom, and thus they first give asked if he could sleep on the But to Herbert, as he turned from It was during this state of affairs she had already done. She could but the Superior, who is a French- to blank despair, which not unfre- by saying he could try it, as he had the white cottage, embowered with she was first seen by young Dibsley, do nothing without exciting his an evergreens, where he had enjoyed the proprietor of several cotton-mills tagonism; and at length, wearied assured me to the contrary. S and SHAWLS, and suffered so much, all the beauties in a neighboring town. This young and worn out by her efforts to please "Non," said he, with a little emoof this fairest season of the year gentleman had the reputation of be- him, she became exasperated beyond tion; "il n'est pas fou. C'est un bon are constantly supposing and build- he ever saw."

ed dull; the autumnal foliage dead; business. He had inherited his A severe quarrel was the result, etait un peu amer." the air chilled him, and sad voices property from his father and two and the one crowning voice of the As for Jeanie, the blue-eyed myr- and inevitable obstacles, but which reason that the sun goes down tole Clothing, songs of the bargemen sounded like ducting the triple estate with the He had concealed it until then, most waved above her bosom for many or prospective, the conversation of a stand de 'clemency of the New triple estate with the st a mockery of his grief, and the quails utmost economy and exactitude scrupulously; but the night after years. S, PANTS Whistled as it they were vaunting Stories were told, to be sure, of cru- their first qualified difference; he and VESTS, their own careless happiness to tantal state of indialize him.

S, PANTS

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously transaction that might be dubiously tones of them who ought never to touch a drop of any the first qualified difference; he came home in a brutal state of indialize him.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously becomes softened and brightened.—

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously becomes softened and brightened.—

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously becomes softened and brightened.—

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously becomes softened and brightened.—

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously becomes softened and brightened.—

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of transaction that might be dubiously becomes softened and brightened.—

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The pressure of a ripe, red pair of the hypochondriae toxication.

The p was all that was left to him-all that gally clear, and the hard-headed, desired more; while each successive interest, and that of others, may be ties from the depressive nightmare Granted myself." he could carry with him, out into flinty-faced old Puritans of that re-potation made him more obstinate, committed; without the third, noth- of sickly fancies, he soon finds that If we lack the sagacity to discrimgion had too great a respect for suc- more pig-headed—if I may be par ing can be well done; and without the "Hope, like the glimmering taper's light, inate nicely between our acquaint."

Adorns and cheers the way:

Cheeriulness. often guilty of this last act of an a feast." Cheerfulness is the sun-the ills counteracted. Cheerfulness rounded by lofty elms, with a care that the wealthy cotton manufact emotions on experiencing the shock? this happy disposition is not only Democratic gains have been enorma shadowy group of cypresses, glea- Jeanie suspected he had thought of mission was to love, and bless, and controls his temper and his impulses ous, and New Jersey has been enmother. But he had profited well prayers, the entreaties, the wring-should have shielded and upheld her all good, for the many blessings that Lincoln an immense plurality, the gladden, to be thus assulted by the become amiable; while he feels a tirely redeemed, both branches of by the instruction and experience he ing of hands, the sobs, choking ut-the thought is too horrible for have been youch-safed to him. His had received, and his works were alterance, and the great bitter agony comtemplation! family rejoice in the sunshine of his Democratic candidate for Governor ready tavorably known, not only to to which Mr. Hathton was calmly This was but the beginning. A smile and his friends unconsciously his Republican competitor, and the still more important class—the pur- lor of the quiet white cottage where periences marked the poor child's ence of that galvanic but agreeable ber of the Legislature from Newpursue his studies among the works but unmoved, while his daughter bound her, on the terms of bargain electricity from soul to soul through in these States have declared them-fell across his life. The parents and made death seem welcome. She relatives of her whom he loved were had given up, she said, the one haphe could have done; but he could not his fellow beings with whom he may quite willing to sacrifice to the dohe longed to see; in a word, there of things, chases away the dismaly idleness, poverty and vulgarity. To all she could say-to all ner were forty good reasons, that sug-visions and spectres that haunt the "Marry a painter!" said Jeanie's passion and misery—her father had gested themselves to his mind, why idler's tancy, labors with contentment what cannot be accomplished here.

he should revisit his old home. and enjoys the fruit of his toil with North continue to gain in the presabove his cold, impassive eyes; "my "I am on the verge of ruin. If He arrived in the town at night; an exquisite relish. He prices not indaughter marry a painter! I had ra- you wish to see your father and and his first idea, before making him- to the flying scandals of the hour mother die in the aims house, I will self known, or taking any steps for that may involve his trief ids, and ridthe National Legislature, and we Jeanie's mother, a poor, weak, tear not seek to thwart you. If you the removal of his effects from the icules or lives down the calumnies ful woman, whose heart had been wish to save us, accede to my re-railroad depot, was to pass a half-that effect himself, thus disarming stifled long ago, only wept and im- quest—the last I shall ever make hour in the vicinity of his old love, the point and edge of slanderous has marked the proceedings of the er found its sweet sorrow, but I have nev brothers and sisters, dicles, and aunts, ty-tour hours, I am to convey your er found its sweetness. It has been and cousins, howled, and raved, and decision to Mr. Dibsley. Weigh the ed, and scaling the fence at a bound, sentiment felt towards h im, for he is demanding that a decent deasure in announce the United States, the United States, the Agency for, and the Agency for, and the American published and world responsibility when I had learn up the beautiful dream that had glad prise, when it was announced that blind, blown open by the wind, re with united States, the United States, the United States, the American published and world responsibility well, and let me know. The town was taken quite by surming the dreams of old. A window are naturally reciproc ated by all the laws, and if their protests and remonstrances are disregarded there. ated and world-re- ed the pleasure of their presence; and dened her soul for a few brief months, Jeanie Hathton had caught a grand vealed a portion of the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room, er in business or ple asure, has a may be a rebellion to the sitting room. G ONGUENT I can safely say that the farewell rather than incur the hatred of all parti, and was to be married at and he could not resist the tempta-kindly effect upon the hearts of ac-

Mustache
This article is the loves best, and where adicus are ing with her, when all the others known the weight of the heart she than usual, and who had been quargarded as a manifest sign of wisdom.

The parting of Herbert Grayne

The parting of H three counties. The girls envied her At the very moment when he did ship and mutuality of a micable emotractive stock of the of quails calling and answering who had forgotten the world, and sions; but without success. He sur-monk who paints very clever pict-city, that their minds are enveloped Western States for enlistment, was to what she wanted to do, hut what brothers generally think he is insane; way to a nervous despondency, then point of a bayonet," when he replied frere, mais il a ete malheureux, et le fin ing up in their fantastic brains what

And still, as darker grows the night, vantage are lost, which is impossible

Emits a brighter ray."

Recent Elections.

The elections which have recently taken place in the Northern States The death of Herbert's father that lingered among the ashes and showed the young artist that his education had absorbed nearly all the means upon which they had lived.—
Nothing was left but the old homestead; a gray and ancient house, sursetead; a gray and ancient house groups and even entire congrega-selves for the preservation of the Thus the cheerful man is a living their adhesion to the Constitution, a apparent; for the present Congress of the United States elected for two years is hopelessly Republican, but ent ratio at the next Congressional ONGUENT, Parting, according to Shakspeare, plored her to obey her father. The Our fate is in your hands. In twen-unknown to her, brothers and sisters, uncles, and aunts, ty-four hours, I am to convey your He knew the house where she livinocuous. Good will is the general Republicans will unite with them in ELLINGHAM, an em- moment had no sweets for me. My her kin, and the curse of those who Christmas to the richest man in tion that beset him, to look inside. quaintances, elicits a k indred friend- at the North as well as at the South.

The decided action of the Democra-Iniversal use. and Jeanie Hathton, one hazy, lazy, with a blight in his heart and a fire The minister smoothly and sol-clenched fists, and uttered a fearful prudent to temper this faculty with all their rights without a murmur, the decrees of Providence and a de-subsists. We think it evident that where the naming lollage glowed ry hour to study, and was known gathered about the poor gill's heart what has dappened? What has thousand autumnal dyes. The among his fellow-artists in Paris as as she stood there to be sold, like a beast in the market-place! The the desired effect) sire it, by mail (direction of price and fields and meadows—the ghost of ty. She became pale and spirituelle, lit was a hard life to lead. Dibsley "Herbert! Do not leave me! What like wise partial and her ever assumed an inconsistent. He have you done?"

what has dappened? "What has the did out friends should likewise partial that our friends should likewise partial destiny as replete with woe, and vember 12.

they conceive to be insurmountable "Cato, what do you suppose is the cheerful companion dispenses the stand de 'clemency of the Norf, and

IL-CLOTHS, tones of a gentle voice still lingered "smart" and the nearest confines of stimulant. He lost his head easily; without the second, mistakes the in gayer and more vivid colors, and widow, I will grant anything you most hartful to your own credit and while he resolves to arouse his facul-say." "Well, sir, I want to be in the chambers of his heart. That "vallainous" but his skirts were le- and atter the first few glasses, only most hurtful to your own credit and while he resolves to arouse his facul- say." "Well, sir, I want to be ances and our friends, misfortune will readily do it for us.

Gentlemen who smoke allege that