POETICAL GLEANINGS.

[From the National Era.] THOUGHTS OF HEAVEN. No sickness there,

No weary wasting of the frame away, No fearful shrinking from the midnight air,

No dread of summer's bright and fervid ray! No hidden grief, No wild and cheerless vision of despair; No vain petition for a swift relief,

No tearful eye, no broken heart are there. Care has no home

Within that realm of ceaseless praise & song-Its tossing billows break and melt in foam, Far from the mansions of the spirit throng.

The storm's black wing Is never spread athwart celestial skies! Its wailing blends not with the voice of spring,

As some too tender flow'ret fades and dies. No night distils Its chilling dews upon the tender frame;

No moon is needed there! the light, which fills That land of glory, from its Maker came. No parted friends

O'er mournful recollections have to weep; No bed of death enduring Love attends, To watch the coming of a pulseless sleep!

No blasted flower

Or withered bud celestial gardens know! No scorching blast, or fierce descending shower Scatters destruction like a ruthless foe!

No battle word Startles the sacred host with fear and dread, The song of peace Creation's morning heard, Is sung wherever angel-minstrels tread!

Let us depart,

With faith our guide,

If home like this await the weary soul. Look up, thou stricken one; thy wounded hear Shall bleed no more at sorrow's stern control

Why fear to plunge in Jordan's rolling tide, And find the ocean of Eternal Day? mmmmmm WOMAN. Say, what is man's supreme delight?

What can fill his heart with pleasure?

What is most precious to his sight?

White-robed and innocent, to trace the way,

What is Nature's choicest treasure? There is a something I can name Is all and more—denv it no man: Tis dearer far than wealth or fame,

'Tis fair, angelic, virtuous Woman. Can aught to man such rapture give? Is she not all his heart can sigh for? For many earthly things he'd live, But lovely Woman he would die for.

Yet there are men, methinks you'd say, Who oft caress her, oft refuse her; Not men-appear like men they may: None but unfeeling brutes abuse her.

I call him man alone whose mind Ne'er harbor'd yet a thought to harm her, In whose fond heart a friend she'd find, If pale distress or pain alarm her.

But henceforth may her sorrows cease, Affliction's frown assail her never: Bless her, kind Heaven, with health and peac And joy attend her steps forever.

For she is man's supreme delight, She can fill his heart with pleasure, She is most precious to his sight. She is nature's choicest treasure.

The most tender hearted man we ever sa was a shoe-maker, who always shut his ev and whistled when he ran his awl into a sole
