THE MOTHERLESS.

God help and shield the motherless, The stricken, bleeding dove-Cloth rooms up stairs—Entrance, south end For whom there gushes no rich fount Of deep and deathless love! The saddest title grief confers-For who so lone as they,

Upon whose path a mother's love

Sheds not its holy ray! No gentle form above them bends To soothe the couch of pain-No voice so fond as her's essays To calm the feverish brain. Oh, other tongues may whisper love, In accents soft and mild; But none on earth so pure as that A mother bears her child!

Judge kindly of the motherless-A weary lot is theirs, And oft the heart the gayest seems, A load of sorrow bears. No faithful voice directs their steps, Or bids them onward press, "And if they gang a kennin' wrang," God help the motherless!

And when the sinful and the frail, The tempted and the tried, Unspotted one! shall cross thy path, Oh, spurn them not aside. Thou knowst not what thou hadst been With trials even less-And when thy lips would vent reproach, Think, they were motherless!

A blessing on the motherless, Where'er they dwell on earth, Within the home of childhood, Or at the stranger's hearth! Blue be the sky above their heads, And bright be the sun within, O God protect the motherless, And keep them free from sin!

OCTOBER.

BY WILLIS GAYLORD CLARK. Solemn, vet beautiful to view, Month of my heart! thou dawnest here, With sad and faded leaves to strew The Summer's melancholy bler. The moaning of thy winds I hear, As the red sunset dies afar, And bars of purple clouds appear,

Obscuring every western star. Thou solemn month! I hear thy voice; It tells my soul of other days, When but to live was to rejoice-When earth was lovely to my gaze! Oh, visions bright—oh, blessed hours, Where are there living raptures now? I ask my spirit's wearied powers-I ask my pale and fevered brow!

I look to Nature and behold My life's dim emblem rustling round, In hues of crimson and of gold-The year's dead honors on the ground: And, sighing with the winds, I feel, While their low pinions murmur by, How much their sweeping tones reveal Of life and human destiny.

When Spring's delightsome moment shone, They came in zephyrs from the West, They bore the wood-lark's melting tone, They stirred the blue lake's glassy breast; correspo Though Summer fainting in the heat, They lingered in the forest shade;

But, changed and strengthened now, they beat the sout In storm, or mountain, glen, and glade. How like those transports of the breast When life is fresh and joy is new, Soft as the halcyon downy's nest, And transient all as they are true! They stir the leaves in that bright wreath, Which Hope about her forehead twines,

'Till Grief's hot sighs around it breathe, Then Pleasure's lip its smile resigns. Alas! for Time, and Death, and Care, What gloom about our way they fling! Like cloud's in Autumn's gusty air, The burial-pageant of the Spring: The dreams that each successive year
