POET'S CORNER.

THE following sublime Ode, to the Supreme Being, is translated from the Russian. It was Tribune.

GOD.

O'PHOU ETERNAL ONE! Whose presence be All space doth occupy—all motion guide; Unchanged thro' Time's all devastating flight, Thou only God! There is no God beside. Being above all things! Mighty One! Whom none can comprehend, and none explore Who fill'st existence with Thyself alone Embracing all-supporting-ruling o'er -Being whom we call God, -and know no more!

In its sublime research, Philosophy May measure out the Ocean deep-may count The sands, or the Sun's rays; but God! for thee There is no weight nor measure, none can mount Though kinsled by Thy light, in vain would try To trace thy counsels infinite and dark; And Thought is lost ere thought can soar so high, en like past moments in eternity.

Thou, from primeval nothingness, dids't call First, Chaos, then Existence, Lord, on Thee Eternity had its foundation: all Sprung forth from Thee; of Light, Joy, Harmony Sole origin-all life, all beauty, Thine. Life giving, life-sustaining Potentate.

And beautifully mingled Life and death! And as the spangles in the sunny rays Shine round the silver snow, the pageantry Of Heaven's bright army, glitters in thy praise.

A million torches lighted by thy hand Wander unwearied through the blue abyss; They own thy power, accomplish thy com All gay with life, all eloquent with bliss; What shall we call them? Piles of crystal light? A glorious company of golden streams: Lamps of celestial ether burning bright?

Yes! as a drop of water in the sea, All this magnificence in Thee is lost: In all the glory of sublimest thought, Is but an atom in the balance, weighed Against Thy greatness—is a cypher brought Against infinity? What am I then? Nought.

Yes, in my spirit doth Thy spirit shine, As shines the sun-beam in a drop of dew, Nought! but I live and on hope's pinions fiv, Eager towards Thy presence, for in Thee I live, and breathe, and dwell; aspiring high, compact first." Even to the throne of Thy Divinity, I am, O God, and surely Thou must be.

Thou art! directing, guiding all, Thou art! Direct my understanding then to Thee; Though but an atom midst immensity, On the last verge of mortal being stand, Close to the realm where Angels have their birth Just on the boundary of the spirit land!

The chain of being is complete in me; In me is matter's last gradation lost, And the next step is Spirit-Deity! I can command the lightning, and am dust! A monarch and a slave; a worm, a God! Lives surely through some higher energy; For from itself alone it could not be.

Creator! Yes! Thy Wisdom and Thy Word Created me! Thou source of Life and Good! Near the abyss of Death, and bade it wear Even in its source, to Thee; its Author, Thee.

O thought ineffable! O vision blest! And walt its homage to the Deity.

The Soul shall speak in tears of gratitude.
