PRINTING OFFICE JOKES.—It is customary in some printing offices, when a particularly green youth commences learning the business, to make him the object of various jokes. He is often sent on an errand to a neighboring office for some article which is of course imaginary, and wholly original in the minds of those who perpetrate the (Six doors west of Brown's Hotel Penn. av.) joke. Once upon a time a boy was sent to K—'s office for a quart of editorial. He they wanted, and not the editor."
